Heads of state of Canada and the U.S. sit down in Washington at 9 a.m. today to initial an agreement which well-informed sources say will pour $319,400,000 in U.S. funds into B.C.'s treasury.

Mountie Saddle For LBJ

President Johnson now has an RCMP saddle to add to his collection at LBJ Ranch. This was Prime Minister Pearson's gift when the two leaders met in Washington yesterday. Johnson presented Pearson with a large map case, an electronic clock and a leather-bound volume of treasures of the National Gallery of Art. In addition to other gifts, the two leaders exchanged photographs.

Pearson, Johnson Parley

WASHINGTON (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson met for 2½ hours Tuesday night for talks which a spokesman said focused mainly on Canadian-American affairs, and especially economic relations.

A member of the Canadian group here said later that "a most excellent understanding" was established between Johnson and Pearson during friendly, informal discussions.

SESSIONS TODAY

Detailed discussions were reserved for sessions today at the White House. Pearson, shortly after his arrival by helicopter, stood next to the president and said in part: "Our friendship is deep and our understanding is great. But we have many problems, of course, because our contacts are so close and so important to each other."

BASIC NATURE

"We will solve those problems, I know, because of the depth of our friendship and the basic nature of our understanding."

Johnson, standing nearby a head taller than the prime minister and Mrs. Pearson, said he looked forward to "fruitful and worthwhile discussions."

$1,000,000 Fire Rages Away

Fire preceded by unexplained blast rages on way to $1,000,000 damage total yesterday at Cowichan High School. One wing of building was total loss, but no students were injured. Fire lasted several hours.

Dionnes Warn U.S. Quints

NEW YORK (UPI) — The four living Dionne quintuplets Tuesday warned the infant Fisher quint not to let their parents turn them into a "tourist attraction."

"Public curiosity is a tidal wave that sooner or later may threaten to swamp you," Annette, Yvonne, Marie and Cecile said in an open letter published in the current issue of McCall's magazine.

"The decisions your parents make in these first months may well be the most important of your lives. It is so difficult, but so necessary, to think in terms of a lifetime, not only of the immediate urgent future..."

"The difficulty is that nobody really knows how to raise (quints) as human beings, not as money-making curiosities. Quintland is a magnet that lures lawyers and promoters and men waving cheque books... the dividing line is terribly slim between meeting real need and cashing in on an opportunity."

In their autobiography, the Dionnes indicated their parents as the primary cause of a painfully unhappy childhood.

The Dionnes said they hoped to meet the Fisher quint in their home of Aberdeen, S.D. "One day, when the fuss dies down."

The Dionnes, now 29 years old, said they hope the Fisher quint will "grow up as independent beings, four girls and a boy joined by great affection, but each able to stand sturdily alone."

"This is a very special wish for you," the Dionnes said, "because if anyone made such a wish for us it has not yet come completely true, not after all the years that have gone by."

$1,000,000 Blast, Fire Destroys Most of School

By ALAN CAMPBELL and
KLAUS MUENTER

LAKE COWICHAN—Dozens of children missed injury—possibly death—here yesterday when a $1,000,000 fire roared through the senior high school exactly three minutes after classes had been dismissed for the day.

At 3:15 p.m., an unexplained blast rocked the gymnasium of the school, ripping the doors from the gym and spewing dense clouds of smoke through the halls and classrooms. Classes ended at 3:12.

Three minutes earlier, the gymnasium had been in use by students of a physical education class.

FIRED OUT QUIETLY

School board officials, teachers and firemen all said there was no panic among the students still lingering in the corridors at the time of the blast, and all fled quietly out of the building as they had been trained.

"But thank God," said one teacher, "this didn't happen three minutes earlier—many would have died."

At the height of the fire, more than 100 men fought the blaze. The Lake Cowichan 15-man de-

Fire Kills Four Children

WINNIPEG (CP) — Four children died and four other persons were injured in an early morning fire today in North End Winnipeg.

Dead in the fire are Wendy, 8, Shelley, 5, Corrine, 2, and Sheldon, 1, three daughters and one son of Mrs. Roberta Davis.

Mrs. Davis, her sister, Jessie Sharon, 46, and Mrs. Davis' two older daughters, Faith, 9, and Bonnie, 8, were taken to hospital suffering from burns, scrapes and from smoke inhalation.

The father, Floyd Davis, already was in hospital, preparing to undergo surgery.

Bonnie noticed the smoke, woke her mother and the pair escaped through a window and over a second-storey porch.

There was at least one hero in yesterday's Lake Cowichan School fire, but no one knows for sure who he was.

Immediately after the blast from the gymnasium area, a student was spotted holding shut two large doors separating the corridors from the burning area, and apparently successfully containing the intense heat and smoke.

He shouted to teachers to "get the kids out of the building—quick," and held on to the doors until nearly overcome by smoke.

Then he left quietly.

Space Switchboard Soars Into Orbit

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) —Relay II, a space switchboard with long life expectancy, soared into orbit Tuesday night in a major step toward a U.S. goal of establishing a world-wide space communications network within three years.

Before the satellite had completed one global pass, it demonstrated its capability. It received radio communications signals and a television test pattern from a ground station at Mojave, Calif., and beamed them back to earth—so both the Mojave station and one at Nurely, N.J.

FIRST TRANSMISSION

First television transmission between continents is scheduled today when high U.S. and Japanese officials are scheduled to exchange greetings via the satellite. President Johnson may be among the U.S. officials.

Stations in seven countries on four continents planned to conduct television, radio, telephone and teletype experiments with the satellite, which carries new electronic components designed to operate several years despite radiation and other space hazards.

Relay II is the first of two big U.S. space efforts on tap this week. Echo II, a 135-foot diameter balloon folded in the nose of a Thor-Agena B booster, is scheduled to be shot into earth orbit Friday.

The United States and the Soviet Union have agreed to try to bounce radio signals off Echo in their first joint experiments in talking via satellite.

A three-stage Delta rocket propelled the 184-pound Relay II upward from Cape Kennedy.

Panama Boats Halted

PANAMA CITY (UPI) — The newspaper La Hora reported from Colon Tuesday the U.S. navy stopped two Panamanian boats off the Colon breakwater, ordered them into the Canal Zone port of Cristobal and held them for a two-hour search.

It said crewmen were drafting a protest to Panamanian President Roberto Chari.

U.S. military spokesmen in the Canal Zone gave a different version. They said the vessels were stopped by zone maritime inspectors but it was "just a routine thing."

China Seeks Global Front

PEKING (Reuters) — Communist China has launched a plea for a united world front against the United States in what some East European observers here felt was a move aimed at Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Appearing Tuesday as an editorial in the main Chinese Communist newspaper People's Daily, the plea echoed a call by party chief Mao Tse-tung calling for the broadest possible unity to counter American "global strategy to conquer the world."

The editorial called for the exploitation of what it interpreted as growing differences between the U.S. and its allies, directly citing Britain, France, West Germany and Japan.

It put forward the theory that there was "an intermediate zone" between the U.S. and Communist countries and that U.S. efforts to seize control of this zone were bound to cause opposition among the people and countries in it.

One part of the zone consisted of "independent countries and those struggling for independence in Asia, Africa and Latin America."

The second part consisted of "the whole of Western Europe, Australasia, Canada and other capitalist countries."

The editorial said all the forces in the world, including the American people but excluding "United States imperialism and its lackeys," could and should form such a front.

At the same time it openly criticized Soviet leaders, saying their "hopes for United States-Soviet co-operation are but idle dreams."

It said that by undermining the unity of the socialist camp, Soviet leaders violated the interests of Russia and of all other socialist countries and catered to the needs of U.S. imperialism.

Some observers said this apparently meant China was prepared to accept the Russian leaders and their followers in the front only if they changed their present policy toward the U.S.

Paris Spurns Warning

PARIS (UPI) — France Tuesday sharply rejected a United States warning against recognizing Communist China.

The rejection came in a "cort note" replying to a Washington note saying it did not consider French recognition of the Peking regime to be of service to the free world, French diplomats said.

President de Gaulle also is reported to have met opposition from West Germany.

will be encountered or what the future relationship of the Canadian and U.S. dollar will be.

Some "educated guesses" on the final realized value of the U.S. payments yesterday ranged from $416,000,000 (Canadian) to $514,000,000 (Canadian).

BANDED ABOUT

A figure of $420,000,000 which has been bandied around Ottawa and reported by newspapers in recent weeks is an average of several such "educated guesses." Like the rest of the final-value figures it could be right, but the person who arrived at it won't know for about 10 years.

The final settlement, beneficial though it may be to B.C., will cause Premier Bennett and other members of the provincial government many sleepless nights.

Constant pressure will be applied by opposition parties to force the government to show how its price has been met.

The latter subject could reach crisis dimensions if the money is used for internal provincial financing and the resultant political controversy shakes U.S. faith in how its investment is being handled.

Informants said today's agreement gives B.C. the money with no other strings attached than those imposed by the construction and performance schedule of the Columbia Treaty.

A U.S. bid to have the Canadian federal government impose a trusteeship over the funds failed when Premier Bennett balked at the suggestion.

Cholera Deaths Hit 110

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (Reuters) — Cholera deaths in Saigon rose to an estimated 116 Tuesday and experts predicted a major epidemic in several Vietnamese provinces. The U.S. military assistance command warned its personnel "the present situation has the characteristics of a dangerous and explosive epidemic."

Your Good Health

Don't Fry Yourself Under A Blanket

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD
Dear Dr. Molner: I have arthritis. What about an electric blanket? I hear that the dry heat is not good for you and makes you tired. Does it dry out the skin?—A.A.

A blanket, electric or otherwise, isn't a treatment device. Its purpose is just to keep you warm, not to apply heat to an arthritic joint.

Too many blankets, or especially heavy ones, can make you uncomfortable, either from excessive heat or from sheer weight. You sleep poorly and you aren't as rested in the morning as you should be.

BE CAREFUL

An electric blanket avoids this weight problem. And the heat usually can be regulated—so be careful not to get it too high.

So much for blankets; now for the arthritis. We know that heat applied to an arthritic joint brings substantial relief, but we are talking about heat applied to an affected area, and considerably more heat than would be comfortable for sleeping purposes if applied to the whole body.

For this purpose moist heat is generally preferable but not always convenient. Soaking a foot or ankle in hot water? Yes. Or a hot bath. Or the whirlpool devices used in hospitals or therapy centres.

But for an aching hip or shoulder or other joint, for home purposes a heating pad or hot water bottle is usually more convenient and will do a very satisfactory job of relief.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please tell me about hists. I have a brother-in-law in the hospital who has TB and hists, they say.—N.E.H.

The complete name for hists is histoplasmosis, a lung disorder caused by a yeast-like organism. A lot has been learned about it in the last few years.

It can resemble tuberculosis quite closely, and it is probable that in the past some TB patients really had hists. It is possible to have both at the same time, too.

However, now that both are so well known, sanitarium doctors are on guard. The two can be distinguished by careful X-ray study, and—most definitely—by a skin test for hists.

partment issued a call for help from neighboring areas when it became apparent they were facing a hopeless job alone.

Assistance came within minutes from logging companies at Youbou, Mesachie, Gordon River and a nearby unit of the B.C. Forest Service.

MOBILE KITCHENS

Most of the town's population turned out for the fire, which burned far into the night. Women set up mobile kitchens and supplied firefighters with coffee and sandwiches as they coughed and groped their way from the centre of the fire.

Eye-witnesses said there was surprisingly little confusion in view of the number of men and trucks, hundreds of feet of hose and thick clouds of smoke that billowed out over the grounds.

WORKED WELL

W. A. Chappel, municipal clerk and volunteer fireman, said he was "amazed" the men worked together as well as they did. "We would have lost everything without outside help," he said.

Most of the classrooms destroyed were those usually the best equipped — and most expensive.

EQUIPMENT LOST

At least $20,000 worth of books were lost, as were typewriters in commercial classrooms and athletic equipment. Chemistry labs and industrial arts equipment was also lost. One teacher left her purse in a classroom.

District school trustees met last night to discuss the acute problems of space and expense facing the district in relocating the students.

Students may have to be taken by bus to nearby schools and the prospect of shift classes may face some students.

Church basements and private halls may be used, at least temporarily. Administration staff will also be hampered in future months by the loss of records and office machines, and if classes are dispersed throughout the district, more administration headaches are expected.

AID PLEDGED
Education Minister Peterson said last night the department of education will assist wherever possible in reorganizing the local system. He mentioned portable classrooms as a possible aid.

Fire marshal's investigators and insurance men will probe the rubble today in an attempt to assess damages and discover the cause of the blaze.

THEORY DISCOUNTED

It was at first thought an electrical transformer had exploded adjacent to the gymnasium, but school board chairman A. B. Greenwell said later this theory had almost been discounted, due to the direction the fire spread after the initial blast.

Mr. Greenwell said most of the electrical equipment was installed last summer in the $160,000 gymnasium area, and built into a fireproof vault.

NO GAS APPLIANCES
He said there were no gas furnaces or other gas appliances in the school buildings.

"It is an awful situation for the school district," Mr. Greenwell said, "but we were still awful lucky."

Chairman

Ald. Millard Mooney, elected yesterday as chairman of the Capital Region Planning Board for 1964, said major work facing the board this year includes completion of transportation study and city of Victoria's advisory plan, and revision of CRPB regional plan. Coun. Lawrence Christian of the Sidney village commission was named vice-chairman.

Peak Sought For Telescope

A mountaintop site, somewhere in the south Okanagan is being sought by astronomers for a powerful new telescope.

Dr. R. M. Petrie, director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, said here yesterday that tests are being carried out but "we feel that a mountain 4,000 to 5,000 feet high in the desert area of south-central B.C. would be the best location."

The federal government has agreed to consider representations by astronomers to construct the $10,000,000 telescope, which would be one of the largest in the world with a reflecting mirror at least 140 inches in diameter.

The new telescope is being sought by the Dominion Observatory.

The proposed new telescope would compare favorably with the world's largest optical telescope at Mount Palomar, Calif., which has a reflector 200 inches in diameter.

Dr. Petrie said lack of a powerful telescope is preventing Canadian astronomers from playing an important role in astronomical research.

Canada now occupies 10th place among countries possessing powerful optical telescopes, whereas the 72-inch optical telescope at the observatory here was the largest in the world when it was built some 50 years ago, he said.

Chicago 10-Year Old To Be Mother Soon

CHICAGO (AP)—A 10-year-old girl is expected to become Chicago's youngest mother in two weeks.

The girl, now in St. Bernard's Hospital, was reported "doing very well" Tuesday by her physician, Dr. Carlo A. Floretti.

Teachers in the parochial school where she attended Grade 4 first suspected her condition and notified welfare officials. After the pregnancy was confirmed, the girl was taken to the hospital.

REAL ONE?

"When I told her she was going to have a baby," a doctor said, "she looked up and asked, 'A real one?'"

"She's up there in her room now, cutting paper dolls from a book."

"She cries a lot and wonders what's going to happen to her and the baby."

16-YEAR-OLD FATHER

Authorities said the girl named a 16-year-old boy as the father of her child.

Health department records show there have been 15 instances of 11-year-old girls giving birth in Chicago since 1950 but none younger.

The youngest mother in medical history was a five-year-old girl in Peru who gave birth to a son.

Johnson Urges Missile Freeze

GENEVA (UPI)—President Johnson Tuesday proposed a five-point peace plan that challenged Russia to join the U.S. in an agreement to freeze nuclear missiles and other strategic weapons at their present numbers.

In a message to the 17-nation disarmament conference that was resumed here Tuesday, the president also called for a halt to the spread of nuclear weapons.

Soviet Bases Inspected In Antarctic

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States has successfully conducted the first Western inspection of Soviet scientific bases in the Antarctic to insure there are no military or nuclear activities there.

The U.S. expedition reported the first unilateral inspection of Soviet Antarctic stations under a 12-power treaty, signed in 1959, which banned military activities or nuclear explosions on the Antarctic continent.

DATES GIVEN
A team of U.S. "observers" visited Russia's Vostok station, 800 miles from the South Pole Jan. 11 and inspected Russia's Myrnyy scientific base on the Antarctic coast Jan. 15, officials said.

The team also inspected New Zealand's Scott station Jan. 9 and made an overflight inspection of the French Dumont d'Urville installation in the Antarctic Jan. 10. The French base was the only one not visited on the ground.

Nuclear Freeze Plan Proposed by Poland

WARSAW (UPI)—Poland is developing a major diplomatic move aimed at blocking the nuclear arming of West Germany and formation of the U.S.-backed multinational nuclear force, informed sources said Tuesday.

The plan envisions the "freezing" of nuclear arms in central Europe at their present levels. It was briefly unveiled and an end to production of fissionable material used in atomic bombs.

The Soviet Union countered with a Soviet-point project. It demanded, among other things, a withdrawal of foreign troops from Europe, an East-West non-aggression pact and the creation of nuclear-free zones around the world, above all in Europe.

However the Soviet proposed arms reduction measures be taken on good faith alone, as Ambassador Semyon Tsarapkin put it, "by mutual example." He did not mention international inspection vital to the American plan.

HOPEFUL FOR FUTURE

But U.S. chief negotiator William Foster said he thought Tsarapkin's "tone was hopeful for the future."

The British minister of state for foreign affairs, Peter Thomas, immediately endorsed Johnson's proposals as likely to "give new impetus" to the conference.

Budget Trimmed

LBJ Asks Defence Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson sent the U.S. Congress Tuesday his trimmed-down $97,900,000,000 budget for the 1964-65 fiscal year and called it "a giant step" toward the elimination of red-ink spending.

As he had announced earlier, it recommends reduced defence spending and calls for the start of a billion-dollar effort "to break the vicious circle of chronic poverty."

Demanding "a passion for efficiency and economy" in government, the president said determined cost cutting would not only produce the first federal spending cut in five years but would release funds to meet unfilled needs—notably the war on chronic poverty.

WITHOUT SACRIFICE

Johnson said defence outlays would be whacked by $1,100,000,000 to $31,200,000,000 without "any sacrifice in essential military capability." Agricultural spending would fall by $1,200,000,000 to $4,900,000,000.

Smaller spending cuts were programmed for veterans benefits, atomic energy, military assistance, the post office, housing and commerce.

FAY INCREASE
Increased outlays were envisaged for a variety of programs, including pay of members of Congress, federal judges and top government executives—the president excluded.

ANTI-POVERTY PLAN
More significantly, he asked that more than $1,000,000,000 be set aside for his anti-poverty plan, which will be spelled out later.

The biggest increase, aimed hopefully at putting an American on the moon by 1970, would boost the space budget by $600,000,000 to $3,000,000,000.

Nerve War in Night

By CHET DI MAURO

NEW YORK (UPI)—It was Snoring Sam Scheir vs. Slammin' Sam Gutwirth in criminal court yesterday.

There was Sam the Snorer facing Sam the Slammer, each accusing the other of creating sleepless nights by the nightmarish combination of hostile snores and slamming on walls in frustrated retaliation.

Sam Scheir, a waiter, said his early morning sleep was disturbed by Sam Gutwirth's pounding on the walls. Gutwirth said he pounded the walls because he was kept awake by the "unnecessary noise" made by Scheir's snoring.

A thin wall separates their apartments in Brooklyn. Both Sams admitted the drooling and humming of the snores and the banging and slamming of walls was making their respective wives almost nervous wrecks.

Judge Matthew Fagan listened with patience and understanding. At stake was the right of man to have his 40 winks and the repercussion the ruling might have throughout the city where wafer-thin-walled "luxury" apartment houses have sprouted up faster than one can say Rip Van Winkle.

Scheir and Gutwirth have been waging their sounds-in-the-night battle for six months.

Defence Claims Victory

Ruby Sent for Tests Bail Bid Withdrawn

DALLAS (UPI)—Proclaiming legal victory, lawyers for Jack Ruby Tuesday withdrew a request for bail because of a court order sending him to a hospital for intensive mental examinations.

Ruby, the self-appointed executioner of accused presidential assassin Lee Oswald, was led from the courtroom smiling. His trial was postponed from Feb. 3 at least until Feb. 17.

CHANGE OF VENUE

His lawyers immediately asked for a change of venue and criminal district Judge Joe Brown set a hearing on the motion Feb. 10.

If he denies the motion, Ruby must go to trial Feb. 17. If he grants a change, he will announce on that date the new location for the trial.

Brown named neuropsychiatrist Dr. Martin Towler and psychiatrist Dr. John Holbrook and Dr. Robert Stubbiefield to conduct the hospital tests on Ruby.

that vibrate the rooms of the adjoining apartment.

Gutwirth's lawyer said "the very anticipation of their beginning . . . has shaken my client and his wife, deprived them of sleep, injured their health, and, in fact, constitute an assault upon their person."

Scheir said his nocturnal noises were a natural phenomenon whereas Gutwirth's wall-banging was deliberate and calculated to jangle the nerves of him and his wife.

Gutwirth said he had hired an operator of a sound-level meter to measure the volume of the drones coming through the wall, but the operator fell asleep and started snoring.

Judge Fagan advised Gutwirth to file a counter-complaint and invited all parties to return to court Feb. 13 for a ruling.

The Cabinet Shuffle

THE MAIN purpose of the cabinet shuffle announced on Monday by Prime Minister Pearson seems quite simply to have been to raise the status and increase the influence of the Quebec representation in the country's administration.

This strategy in due course may pay partisan dividends in that province, to which end the actions of the Liberal regime seem increasingly oriented. But whether the changes in the cabinet lineup will make for greater efficiency in a government that has so far shown itself bumbling in many respects is another question.

Mr. Pearson has not altered the composition of his executive council as between representatives of the English and the French-speaking populations. But the newly-allocated roles tell a tale at variance with this numerical maintenance of the status quo.

Immigration Minister Guy Favreau moves up to the high position of justice minister, for instance, succeeding Lionel Chevrier who has been posted to London as high commissioner. Mr. Favreau rather obviously is being put in the picture as in line for the national Liberal leadership.

The new justice minister also significantly takes away from State Secretary J. W. Pickersgill—who is demoted to transport minister—the task of being government leader in the House of Commons. Nor is this all Mr. Pickersgill loses to a Quebec member. Maurice Lamontagne, until now president of the Privy Council, becomes responsible as new state secretary for culture—or l'éculture—in its many aspects: the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the Board of Broadcast Governors, centennial planning, bilingualism in the public service, the Canada Council.

It will be noted with particular attention in British Columbia too that the energetic forestry minister, John R. Nicholson of Vancouver, has been named to succeed A. J. Dennis as postmaster-general, and that the forestry portfolio goes to Maurice Sauve, MP for J.-de-la-Madeleine, later to be combined with the subordinate agricultural ministry of rural development. From this province's point of view the change can hardly be regarded as a forward step.

The plan for a reorganized treasury board in line with Glasse Commission recommendations may work out to advantage, as may the idea of eventually developing an inner cabinet executive, presumably along the British line.

But these changes are in the future. In the meantime it would scarcely seem that Mr. Pearson has altered the ministers' jobs primarily to suit them better to their departmental tasks and thus overcome weaknesses—in which case he might well have recast Finance Minister Walter Gordon, for example.

It would have been more to the prime minister's credit had the new appointments reflected to a greater extent a recognition of faults in the cabinet makeup and an attempt to remedy them in this round of musical chairs, rather than a shifting of power and influence in hope of partisan gain.

Old Contemptibles

A NOTABLE gathering will take place at Buckingham Palace in June, akin in its way to the famous Hyde Park review of VC winners in 1956, when surviving "Old Contemptibles" and their wives are honored by the Queen in commemoration of their 50th anniversary.

It was at the outset of the 1914-18 war that the Kaiser, eyeing the 65,000-man BEF contingent which had crossed the channel to meet the shock of the German invasion of Belgium and France, described this force as "French's contemptible little army."

These were words he soon had cause to regret, and the term was adopted as one of prideful distinction by the troops whose gallantry at Mons is now legendary.

There are not many of these veterans left; possibly only about 1,000. In all probability only a fraction of this number will be able to attend, for age and physical impairment has taken its toll. For those able to do so the Queen's review will be an accolade to be cherished.

Some of these Old Contemptibles now reside on Vancouver Island, perhaps 20 of them. They too feel the weight of years and probably few have the means to reach London for this gathering or are able to undertake such a journey.

It would be a fine gesture, however, if some local authority or agency were willing to sponsor their attendance, and make what arrangements are necessary to ensure that they might take their place before the Queen on this historic occasion.

Of Interest to All

INITIAL RESPONSE to the fund drive to create a senior citizenship centre in Centennial Square has been somewhat slow but undoubtedly as the campaign gathers momentum results will prove to be satisfactory.

There is a wealth of goodwill to be tapped for such a worthy cause, and the two generous and large-size individual donations which have been publicly noted may be expected to induce other substantial gestures of this nature.

This centre will be one of the several structures which are being planned to give Centennial Square a new and appealing civic character, the whole being a venture of great future value to the downtown area and one of particular distinction and credit to the city.

The centre's purpose of course is to provide facilities and amenities which will enable senior citizens of all strata to have a headquarters catering to their twilight years, with various recreational activities made possible for their pursuit.

The elderly no less than the young require the favor and interest of all citizens at large.

In total the centre is estimated to cost $200,000, which ensures a building of substantial merit and harmony with the general Centennial Square development, but two-thirds of this amount will be underwritten by provincial and city contributions.

The remainder, an objective of $65,000, is being raised under the aegis of the senior citizenship group itself, and it is to this goal that the public is invited to subscribe. We feel sure that as the campaign proceeds the response will be all that the sponsors desire and this fine project brought to the successful conclusion it deserves.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax..."
By TOM TAYLOR

THEY are full of kind hearts at Ottawa. They have been worrying about our arithmetical incapacities. So they're going to do something to ease our untangling with income tax.

Least you jump rashly to the wrong conclusion, this doesn't mean the tax is being reduced. Kindness doesn't stretch that far.

No, it's just that the chaps who devise the complicated forms that make us bite our nails have realized. They're putting the most of us where, seemingly, we belong.

In third-grade mathematical standing.

No fewer than 800,000 Canadians made mistakes in their returns last year. Not deliberately, mind you, or so the assumption must be. It takes more skill to falsify a return and get away with it than it does to make a genuine error.

And 800,000 errors suggest that most of us very certainly belong to the pre-computer age.

There is no admission that maybe the tax department's over-elaborate structure of calculation was to blame, except by implication. No, the indictment is that most of us are not very good at one of the three "R's."

When it comes to addition and subtraction we fall way behind our high school students.

They don't pay income tax but if they did they'd calculate it in a few moments. We older folk are more simply minded.

Which no doubt is why last year we gaped in awe at the ingenuity that could think of adding something on and then taking it off again.

This was a venture into the higher realms of calculation so rare it befuddled us. It was hard to appreciate such a master-piece, you know.

And I suppose it would surprise Ottawa to know that the taxpayer isn't the least bit interested in who should get the credit, or the blame, for this or that part of the tax-provincial or federal. To him it's all one whom he is paying, alas.

Anyway, we backward nation of old-fashioned arithmeticians are to have our burdens lightened. We shall be given form tables this year to make it easy to know "what we owe."

Only those in the higher payment brackets will still have to hunt their brows while suppressing their shagrin.

I don't know that "owe" is quite the most popular term to use in this connection nevertheless. Few of us think we ever owe the government anything; we're more likely to file our entries as a punishment for being alive.

A pity, however, there could not be deductions that would subtract right down to zero. This would show a remarkably transformed arithmetical capacity, I'm sure, and offset the notion that all of 800,000 of us can't count, can't add and can't subtract.

Well, we should be thankful for small mercies; and small enough these will seem in fact when we settle down to settle up our 1963 income tax levies.

Costly Kind of Politics

By MARQUIS CHILDS

United States Secretary of Defence Robert S. McNamara is normally the coolest and most rational of men. But when he was first shown Sen. Barry Goldwater's statement that America's missiles were "undependable," he responded with an outburst that started associates who have worked with him for three years.

The public statement he issued, calling Goldwater's remarks "reckless" and "irresponsible" as well as untrue, was the strongest he has ever put out. What he said privately, however, was even more scorching.

The possibility McNamara forewent in the Goldwater blast was a repudiation of one of the most lamentable aspects of the presidential campaign of 1960. The Democrats took up the cry of a "missile gap," charging that the Eisenhower administration had allowed America's defence to lag far behind in the race with the Soviet Union for security. This became a major issue, with the public increasingly concerned about the nation's weakness in nuclear weaponry.

McNamara has said that it took him no more than three weeks of close analysis when he moved into the defence department to be convinced that the "missile gap" was a myth. What he found puzzling was that the Republicans had not punctured the charge at the outset with facts which could be readily deduced from an objective examination of intelligence data.

The consequences of the "missile gap" myth projected into the 60 campaign were, as the secretary of defence tried to cope with them, most unfortunate. The proposed new manned bomber, then known as the B-70, got a further lease on life. Politicians on both sides of the fence were made aware that payrolls totalling 24,000 were dependent on its continuing development.

McNamara has spent many hours wrestling with the issue of the new manned bomber which when he came into office had already cost up to $1 billion. The new and highly experimental plane was supposed to have flown two years ago. The secretary believes it is superfluous as more and more of the scheduled 1,200 Minuteman missiles are installed.

This gets down to the root of the Goldwater attack and the "missile gap" myth of four years ago. The combined lobby of the air force and the aircraft industry is one of the most powerful in the United States. It is underwritten both by an important segment of the economy and by the deep emotional bias of the fly boys whose allegiance is to the manned aircraft and the challenge of combat in the wild blue yonder.

Senator Goldwater as an air force reserve major general has a stake in two branches of the Constitution that under the Constitution are supposed to exist in independent compartments. This is a disturbing aspect of the Goldwater attack that McNamara is currently looking into.

Pentagon records show that 112 members of Congress hold reserve commissions, 34 in the army, 35 in the marine corps, 23 air force and 20 navy. Do these congressmen who put on a military hat from time to time for special training periods tend to become lobbyists for the service in which they are commissioned? And lobbyists, it might be added, with a privileged opportunity to influence legislation.

This is a question Secretary McNamara would like to see answered. Since it involves both patriotism and partisanship, any objective answer will be hard to come by. Lyndon Johnson as a young Congressman was a member of the naval reserve and after Pearl Harbor he was the first member of the House of Representatives to be called to active service. He has ever since kept a reserve commission as a commander. If in a formal gesture he were to surrender this commission, it might be an opportune moment to examine the status of senators and representatives who wear two hats.

Concerned with cutting all possible fat out of the defence budget, McNamara understandably wants to avoid another political campaign based on charges and countercharges about weapons. As the weapon, this kind of politics is costly indeed.

Reason to Be Cautious

By OTTO VON HARSBURG

THE opening of a hole in the Berlin wall during the Christmas season made a deep impression. Many see in it the beginning of a more humane attitude in Pankov. Once again there is the danger that sentimentality might supersede the necessary realism.

Dictators Ulbricht and Khrushchev had explained the building of the wall by the need to protect East Germany from the infiltration of Western agents and agitators. In the Free World some socialist politicians had echoed this propaganda line. What has happened now proves the utter falsehood of these statements. The fact that the door was opened for Westerners and not for the slaves of the Communist regime shows that the wall was meant to surround a prison, not to prevent an aggression. Western propaganda by its weakness once again has missed a wonderful opportunity; it seems all too frequently more intent on sparing the sensitivity of the totalitarians than in presenting facts favorable to democracy's cause.

The political implications of the development are ominous. The opening in the wall was preceded by talks between West Berlin authorities and East German representatives. Other conversations are foreseen. They are bound to influence the over-all diplomatic situation.

The negotiations conducted by the Berlin senate threaten to establish the city gradually in the public mind as a third German state—something desired by Ulbricht. At the same time meetings between free Germans and Communist officials give the feeling of a de facto recognition of the Pankov regime, once they go beyond the essential minimum imposed by geographic factors.

Of course, the responsible leaders deny categorically any intention to change their present policy. They are certainly honest. Nevertheless the question arises whether the Berlin senate has not unwittingly launched a development involving grave risks. Once the principle of meeting Pankov's representatives on equal terms is admitted, its limitation to only one set of questions will be most difficult to maintain, especially since on East-West problems Germany is not entitled to decide alone, due to the involvement of the U.S., France and Great Britain in Berlin.

It is obvious that the U.S.S.R. is preparing for a major diplomatic offensive on the German question in 1964. The Soviets will try to obtain the transformation of the country into a confederation of three states, where each will retain its regime but where the whole area will live outside the existing alliances. Such a solution would weaken NATO's defence, while preserving the structure of the Warsaw Pact and simultaneously secure the present status in Eastern Europe. Under these conditions the outcome of the approaching negotiations could only favor the Soviet Union.

The other half of the road was left merely gravelled in such a hurry that the sign "abandon hope all ye that enter" was not erected, undoubtedly due to the love the aforesaid politicians seem to have for surprising their electors.

It is a most scenic drive, embracing the Strait of Juan de Fuca and round the Sooke Basin. Surely something could be done—and soon—in the interest of the mighty tourist trade, if not for the growing number of inhabitants, and old-time residents.

The many near accidents and narrow escapes are taking their toll on the thinking—and meaning—of "political" patronage shown regarding the roads many have to travel.

Nehru's Tragedy

Continuing Slide

By TOM STACEY from New Delhi
(Last of Three Articles)

NEHRU wishes no contender. It was S. K. Paul who first called him "The Banyan Tree"—under which nothing will grow.

He will not even consider a successor: and because of that no one can openly aspire to become it.

To do so would be, to scores of millions, an incursion upon divinity; a divinity gathered during Nehru's unique role in the campaign for independence when his wonderful qualities of humanity, warmth and devotion shone out most brilliantly. A divinity imparted to him, moreover, by the Mahatma himself. This immeasurable power (if it does not drain away before his death) may hand to his daughter the best chance of succeeding him.

It is hardly conceivable that the government immediately following Nehru's departure from the scene can give India the kind of leadership it must have if it is not to continue its slowly accelerating decline.

The best that can be expected, if the change comes in the next year or two, is a kind of interim government-by-committee. Even that demands its chairman.

Indira Gandhi (her lawyer husband, no relation of the Mahatma, died in 1960) is a candidate in the Stevenson tradition. They will choose her for her reluctance to stand. She will tolerate no "idiotic" talk of herself in leadership. She will merely echo her father's vague indication that the people should make their own selection.

It is there, with the people, that she is strongest, if somehow the mass instinct can be tapped—as her father's offspring, who may well receive Chacha-Ji's ("Uncle" Nehru's) deathbed blessing.

She alone knows her father's mind intimately, and retains his intimate trust. It is she who accompanies him whenever he travels, and she who is chosen for the delicate missions like that she has just returned from, of touring Africa to counter China's growing reputation.

Moreover, this delicate woman, with her feminine strength of will as visible in her face as Elizabeth Ts. is strong politically in her own right—as successful recent national chief functionary in several important national bodies like the citizen's council.

She has pronounced views of her own; left of her father's, perhaps, but firmly and Communist.

When she was a small girl, one of her playmates—though 13 years her elder—was a tiny gentle-mannered lad called Lal Bahadur. He became home minister. Now he is out of office; but alone of senior ministers in recent years, Lal Bahadur retained a measure of Nehru's love, though too much the "traditionalist" in Indira's eyes. No government succeeding Nehru could exclude him. He might well lead it.

His genuinely Gandhian attitude (far from the phony asceticism of one or two other aggressively vegetarian contenders) appeal to party and people, though the extroverts (like Paul) may scorn it as impracticable in the tough politics of modern statehood to which India aspires.

The next government must be a hotch-potch—Lal Bahadur, Paul (whom Americans, in their filigree Parthenon of an embassy, seem to fancy so), Kamaram of Madras, perhaps the unlucky Desai ("Karna" in the midst of courageous but unpopular financial policies), and rich and thrusting Patil from Orissa, and even the hovering Menon to placate the far left, though no one loves him—until it falls apart and splits congress for good. And then?

That is more interesting. It seems it will lie between the Communists and the new generation of political handbills emerging in the states—strong arm men, perfunctory of principle, backed by money and a well-paid political machine, deeply familiar with the worn-like writhings of Hindu society.

One might even see one of them in alliance with the Communists. For the reds are strong—the principle opposition group in the central Parliament and overall in the states.

Despite the Chinese invasion they could win nearly 10 per cent of the votes in 1962, and a few months ago could organize 100,000 to present a petition against Desai's police bearing (a claimed) 10 million signatures.

Moreover, they are unusual Communists, flexible, and patriotic, the dominant, Moscow wing.

They are confident of winning power in course of time through the ballot box.

"Look," said one of their MPs leading me to the office back window over a stunning alley, where we could see a family of untouchables picking at one another's hair in the roofless mud ruin which was their home, "how can we fall to win? Just a little more education..."

"The best insurance against China," another comrade put in inadvertently, "is us."

Khrushchev would agree. Or else the army. Hitherto this has preferred its tradition of aloofness from politics. The soldiers are widely dispirited in origin and local allegiance. But would they stand aside while India collapsed into disorder or was swept into Communism?

Meanwhile, the continuing slide. The free world must grow accustomed to its most populous member being without coherent leadership, swallowing aid and arms without significant effect, a tempting prey to the predatory-minded and indistinct of the free and democratic method of advancement in Afro-Asian eyes, where mature authority is so deeply needed.

For 16 years the old man has made his own path and India's path one. He has not spared himself, and will not. He can die for India, but achieve the reverse.

divorceless world is one devoid of opposites, senseless as this may appear and when opposites are the measuring stick of life. Without opposites we should not be here!

For man is opposed to himself in all things. This is what keeps him in balance. So we have marriage opposed to divorce, life to death, truth to falsehood, laughter to tears, joy to sorrow and vice versa. All self-evident and understandable. Inter-changeable. And all considered rights.

The right to marry includes its opposite, the right to divorce. This may never be exercised but it's inherent in the nature of things. Vows are relative.

Session Could Be the Most Explosive Yet

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Legislative Reporter

The first acid ingredients of political chemistry start bubbling in the cauldron of B.C.'s 27th Legislature Thursday—and they are the elements of a time bomb.

But whether they become a combustible mixture during the next seven or eight weeks will depend on the haphazard contributions of 52 highly individualist alchemists.

The array of potentially explosive materials this year is one of the greatest since Social Credit rocketed to power in 1952 and the environment is one of acid bitterness.

Doing Slow Burn

The NDP and Liberal opposition parties have been doing a slow burn ever since wily Premier Bennett caught them off guard with last summer's snap election, and beneath their outward calm lurks anger and humiliation.

If the Sept. 30 election results—two seats less for the NDP, two more for the government, no gain for the Liberals—has left the opposition daunted, Social Credit could build its way through a calm session.

But at some stage every year tempers get short and nerves frayed. Crowding from the government benches at a time like this could light the fuse.

Varied Causes

Among subjects which are likely to prove inflammatory are last spring's highway probe, hydro power, remedial legislation for the BCE-takeover fiasco, social welfare, new labor legislation, electoral procedures and machinery, the still-to-come Clyne report on expropriation, resignations at Woodlands School for retarded children.

The abortive highways inquiry, bipartisan public accounts committee absolved Highways Minister Gagliardi and his men of any guilt.

The NDP will charge that the government's ineptness has cast a cloud over provincial rights throughout the country.

At least two cabinet ministers—welfare's Wesley Black and health's Eric Martin—can expect fireworks.

Mr. Black and his department hit the headlines this month when Prince George social worker Bridget Moran charged welfare with inefficiency, waste and failure to measure up to its responsibilities. Her charges were subsequently endorsed by former B.C. superintendent of child welfare Ruby McKay who resigned in 1962.

Mr. Martin's ineptness has cast a cloud over provincial rights throughout the country.

Her charges were subsequently endorsed by former B.C. superintendent of child welfare Ruby McKay who resigned in 1962.

Martin Target

Eric Martin inflamed the opposition two weeks ago when he launched wild counter-attacks at critics of recent resignations at Woodlands School. He said the resignations had nothing to do with politics and he'd "lower the boom" on any political adversaries who said they did.

But he became a prime target even earlier when he was reported to have threatened an investigation of pre and post-natal care by B.C. doctors in reprisal against charges the government was responsible for a high infant mortality rate.

Negligence Claimed

One of the biggest storms may spring from the election. The opposition charges negligence in drawing up voters' lists and political parties in calling an election some two years sooner than necessary and with a mere 38 days' notice. Premier Bennett will be asked to account for his early summer denials any election was in the offing.

A major explosion could result if new restrictive labor laws are brought in. Labor officials feel the government may bring in measures to prohibit "mystery pickets"—a B.C. phenomenon stemming from legislation which holds a union legally responsible for the conduct of its members.

Opposition speakers will launch a concerted attack on dual portfolios. Both NDP and Liberals have for long demanded a full-time labor minister (the labor portfolio is held by Education Minister Peterson) and the premier's answer late last year was to hand the important recreation-conservation department to busy Mines Minister Kiernan.

Little is known so far about the government's legislative program.

Legal Aid Bill

Expected is a legal aid bill for accused persons who cannot afford counsel, regulations requiring full disclosure of the effects of installment-purchase contracts, legislation abolishing the B.C. Toll Authority and setting up a B.C. Ferry Authority, and amendments to the sales tax as it applies to prepared meals.

Legislation overhauling government expropriation procedures is a possibility but more likely is a year away.

New NDP Image

One factor that could militate against any record shockwaves is the "new image" which Opposition Leader Robert Strachan and his party adopted before the summer election.

Political observers first noticed it when party officials cut out the fire-and-brimstone socialist oratory and appeared before the people looking like small businessmen.

But taking into consideration the failure of the "new image" at the polls, fire and brimstone may be back in style.

MONTREAL (CP)—Sixty staff members of the CBC international service appointed a committee Tuesday to fight any move to dissolve the broadcasting agency.

Reports that the service would be abolished have come from Ottawa, where the international service budget is being considered by the treasury board.

The staff members' meeting also decided that telegrams should be sent to Prime Minister Pearson and other appropriate cabinet ministers asking for a clarification of the situation and giving reasons why the service should be continued.

About 150 persons — announcers, editors, engineers and clerical staff — are employed by the service.

Increase In Price Rejected

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—A principle that could have resulted in a one-cent increase in the price of a loaf of bread in Canada was rejected Tuesday by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

The principle involved, as some western grain growers saw it, was that the price of wheat used domestically for human consumption should be based on the Canadian economy, not sold at lower international wheat agreement prices.

TWO-PRICE SYSTEM

One delegate to the CFA annual meeting here said this would mean a one-cent increase in the price of bread. The underlying principle, as supporting delegates called it, came up in a resolution considered by the CFA asking the federal government to implement a two-price system for wheat used domestically for human consumption, a policy to which the government "has committed itself."

The resolution was defeated.

Bigger Success

Aldous Confident Of Ferries' Future

The general manager of the B.C. Toll Authority ferry system said yesterday he felt before it started it would be a success, knows now it is a success and is confident a bigger success is ahead.

When the project began in 1960, Mr. Aldous told the Kiwanis Club of Victoria North in the Tally-Ho last night, he considered it a real necessity "and the way the government was going about it, I was sure it would be a success."

Bowering Stricken

Reginald Bowering, former director of public health engineering for B.C., suffered a heart attack in Washington, D.C., Saturday, it was learned yesterday.

A relative said Mr. Bowering was holding his own. No more recent report on his condition was available.

Mr. Bowering left his position here Aug. 1 after 23 years service to take a position with the International Bank of Reconstruction and Development in Washington.

"Last August alone we moved about 250,000 people," he said. "The service has unquestionably brought so many more travellers to the Island... and is a valuable part of our economy."

Now the authority was moving onto something which was really interesting.

Mr. Aldous felt sure the proposed northern run linking Vancouver Island with Alaska was also going to be a big hit.

U.S. TRAVELLERS

Already people in the State of Washington were talking of coming over from Port Angeles, travelling up to the northern end of the Island, perhaps on to Alaska and then returning by a different route through the interior of B.C., he said.

FULLY-BOOKED

A ship for the run would be ready for operation by the summer of 1965.

"I am certain that by spring 1965," said Mr. Aldous, "we shall have our first trips fully booked. I can't talk about tariffs—they will be announced later—but it will be a very reasonable rate of travel."

Eskimos at Home on Curling Ice

It's bonspiel time across Canada, even in the Northwest Territories. At Cape Perry on the Arctic Ocean, a distant Early Warning radar site, Squadron Leader E. C. Tuckey of London, Ont., took a bonspiel licking from an Eskimo rink. That's opposing

NEW YORK—That little band of willful men who own the American League have plunged headlong into a court battle that may alter the entire structure of major league baseball. They asked for it when they ordered Chaffee O. Finley back into his box in Kansas City.

Before the brothers met to vote on his plan to jump to Kentucky, the owner of the Philadelphia Kansas City Athletics said he was aware that some of the members wanted him out of their little league and were prepared to keep him in Kansas City if that would serve him out.

Even before he made his pitch — first to the league's five-man board of directors and then to representatives of the nine other clubs — he had resolved to sue if he was voted down. He was turned down, nine votes against his own, even though he had announced his intention of going to court. He will now ask the courts to decide whether: "I can move a franchise I think I own." He will necessarily attack the validity of the provision in baseball law requiring consent of eight of the league's 10 clubs before a franchise may be moved. Instead, he will argue that the other owners unfairly and unreasonably are forcing him into a position where he must lose money.

Somebody Will Fall In Five

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Heavyweight boxing champion Sonny Liston predicted Tuesday that his Feb. 25 title match against Cassius Clay at Miami Beach will end within five rounds "one way or the other."

"No matter who wins, we'll all go home early," the champion said while gulping down a glass of milk at his training camp.

A reporter recalled that England's Henry Cooper, knocked out in the fifth round by Clay last summer, said recently that Cassius would give Liston lots of trouble for eight to 10 rounds.

"Cooper better be training hard too," said Liston jokingly. "I'm going to get him next." Cooper is considered a likely opponent for the winner of the Liston-Clay bout.

Reminded he has predicted variously that the fight would end in three, five and eight rounds, Liston again said: "Inside of five."

AT THE 19th With Harry Young

Because of the poor example it sets to the rank and file of golfers it is always unfortunate when incidents happen on television such as the one affecting Arnold Palmer at the 17th hole at Pebble Beach last Saturday.

Although I did not see the incident and am thus mainly relying on hearsay of those who did, it appears it was another malapropos such as that enacted a few years ago by Don January when he waited about seven minutes to see if his ball, lying on the edge of the hole, would drop into the cup.

I am told that on this occasion Palmer—with his ball bobbing on the brink of the Pacific Ocean behind the 17th hole, waited almost 10 minutes while he was given a decision as to procedure.

As Palmer had been disqualified on the same course a year ago for rule infraction, it would have been thought reasonable to assume that before he started this year he would have known what he ought to do if the ball was beached on this ocean-lined course.

I am also informed that Palmer appeared to wait for the tide and current to improve the lie of his ball in the water.

On this, at least, Palmer should have known the score. Rule 25 says "When a ball is in water the player may, without penalty make a stroke at it while it is moving, but he must not delay to make the stroke in order to allow wind or current to better the position of his ball."

Meantime the TV folk were having a fine time. They said Palmer was taking his misfortune in good humor. The player was said to have whimsically expressed the hope that a conversely straying retriever dog would act as an angling outside agency and pick the ball out of the water for him.

The USPGA, which controls these tournaments, is lax about these matters and appears to see them as interludes to excite spectator interest in the game.

Unhappily the miracle of TV has brought the stars of the game into millions of golfing homes, and everything they do is liable to be copied as according to rule. The amiable giants who so obligingly "ham it up" for the TV cameras maybe do not realize how damaging an image they may be creating.

Because Palmer held up play and allowed two matches to play through at Pebble Beach, some late starters finished in the dark.

Slowpoke golf is perhaps the biggest problem facing the game today for the clubs, and it is a pity that the USPGA does not demand that its top players, particularly when on TV, should abide by the spirit as well as the letter of the rules.

Laurie Carroll and Ron MacLeod of Victoria Golf Club still reign supreme as Victoria open buttons-holders. They beat Ardmore's lefthanders Harold Jacobson and Emil Beauchemin at Gorge Vale Sunday, 3 and 2.

Despite the rain-lashed storm, the players volunteered not to postpone the match, and in the circumstances the golf was remarkably good. Carroll and MacLeod were two up at the turn despite some fine golf by their opponents.

The junior buttons are also anchored securely in the laps of the Gorge Vale youngsters Earl Francis and Ricky Bath. They have held these buttons since the season opened last October, and on this occasion they had a 5-4 win over West MacKay and Bob Butler of Royal Colwood.

This week's button matches are at Uplands, where an Uplands team will be challengers to Carroll and MacLeod, and Victoria's Jay Wilson and Jim Pomeroy will meet Francis and Bath for the junior buttons.

Victoria Golf Club has yet to pick a successor to Laurie Carroll as club professional.

It was announced at the monthly meeting of the committee Monday that 47 applications had been received and "they were being screened."

Annual general meeting of the B.C. Golf Association will be held at Point Grey Golf Club, Vancouver, Friday, Reg Harwood, Chemainus, has been nominated as director for Zone 6 (north Vancouver Island) and two nominations for three places in Zone 1 (Victoria) are Alex Hendry and Don Ross.

Hendry is a former president of the Pacific Northwest Golf Association, and Don Ross was recently elected president of Royal Colwood.

Uplands golfer Bert Barnes entered his name in a Christmas prize contest sponsored by a U.S. golf magazine. He received word recently that he had won one of the chief awards, a set of four top-grade woods.

for the heavyweight title fight with Jess Willard more than 40 years ago.

Journal boxing writer Evans Kirby says stand-ins were assembled to do all the things Jack Kearns said in a magazine article were done before Dempsey knocked out Willard in three rounds July 4, 1919, in Toledo.

NAME MATERIALS
"Using the same materials in the same way that Kearns described, showed that a plaster fist could not be made that way," Kirby wrote.

Standing in for Kearns in the experiment was Al Frain, a veteran boxing figure who has taped boxers' hands for more than half a century. Eddie Metrie, a boxing manager and gymnasium operator, took the part of Walker Moynahan, Willard's chief second. Frank Linnemans, a Golden Gloves heavyweight, was assigned Dempsey's part.

Kearns said he wound Dempsey's bandages as Moynahan looked on, then used a sponge to soak the wrappings. The next step was to heavily sprinkle the plaster of paris from a powder can onto the soaked bandages.

Said Kirby: "We got a thin layer of soft cement which cracked at a slight touch and fell from the bandages at a slight brushing. Little if any of the plaster of paris would have been on the bandages by the time Dempsey travelled from his dressing room to the ring, where the gloves were put on. If any had remained, it would have turned to powder at the first light blow."

Badminton Team Rapped by East

MONTREAL (CP) — Gilles Pickens of Montreal, president of the Canadian Badminton Association, said Tuesday Canada's Thomas Cup team was selected prematurely and it's going to have a harmful effect on the game.

He blamed Daryl Thomas of Vancouver, chairman of the association's nominating committee, for the team.

"Canada isn't going to win the Thomas Cup," said Pickens. "And now the usefulness of the competition has been destroyed. It could have served as a stimulus for badminton across the country. But there's little incentive left now."

Nominated to the team were British Columbia's Bert Ferguson, Wayne Macdonnell, Ed and Roll Patterson, Bob Hunt of Victoria and Bruce Rollick, Jim Carnwath of Woodstock, Ont., and Ed Vabondel of Montreal.

Pickens said Thomas did not know enough about players outside B.C. to make strong selections.

"I do not feel," he said, "that baseball has any right to force me to stay in a city where I am continuously losing money. I don't think the courts will uphold the decision of the American League to keep one of its members unjustifiably in a losing situation."

The notion here, unsupported by legal schooling, is that he must win.

Whether he does or not, there can be no doubt that baseball has stuck its neck out as never before. The league wasn't content merely to reject Finley's request to shift from Kansas City to Louisville. It went further with a resolution — also passed by a 9-to-1 vote — providing that if he didn't have a lease on Kansas City's Municipal Stadium by Feb. 1, immediate steps would be taken to throw him out of the brotherhood.

FIRST TIME
There has been kicking and gouging in the clinches before this, but this is the first time ever the boys have got together and told a brother, "Knuckle down or get out." It is also the first time Little Brother has invited them to go for their ears.

"They're a pretty rough bunch of boys," Finley said, "but I've been through rougher things than this, so they don't faze me, either."

Late last night Finley was still undecided on the order of steps to be followed. As soon as possible, he will file his suit, probably beginning with a plea to enjoin the league from enforcing its order against moving.

THROUGH MOTIONS
He will also go back to Kansas City and go through the motions, at least, of negotiating a lease with the city council. He will try for a one-year lease, in itself a clear declaration of his intention to move as soon as possible.

Considering that Kansas City has rejected his terms for a five-year lease with renewed options and a two-year lease without options, prospects aren't bright that he can get a one-year deal.

This won't bother him. He can accept a 10-year contract, knowing that if he wins his case in court he can vacate immediately, on the ground that the lease was signed under duress. Or he can offer a fantastic rental for a one-year lease. If the city turned that down, he could present evidence in court that he made a bonafide effort to meet the league's Feb. 1 deadline.

He says he will not sell out. "If somebody came around tonight and offered me $10,000,000 for my $5,000,000 investment, I wouldn't sell."

"When they had voted you down, 9-to-1, and you warned them you would take them to court, and nobody responded to the chairman's invitation to move for reconsideration of the vote, how did you feel?"

"It removed any doubts I may have had that they were serious."

Golfers Stand Pat On Derman

Buttons chairman is Laurie Kerr, a newcomer to the district committee, and many times a former Victoria and B.C. amateur champion.

Dr. George Binkley was re-elected chairman of the Inter-Club League competition with Vic Hicks, Uplands, as secretary.

Nerves Fail Bantam Ben

BEN HOGAN
... 'Irene'

NEW YORK (AP)—Ben Hogan, 51, once the most feared man in golf, says he's ashamed to get out on a course now because of a bad case of putting jitters.

"That's all it is—the jitters, nerves. I can't bring the club back any more," the four-time U.S. Open champion said as he relaxed in a midtown hotel room Tuesday and discussed his putting problems.

"I absolutely freeze over the ball. I have no conception where it's going. I'm embarrassed about getting out there in front of a lot of people. I might hit one of them.

"That's why I have no tournament plans at the moment. The Masters? No, not even the Masters. The Open? Definitely, I won't play in the Open."

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

The provincial fish and game branch will stand for no pollution of Buttle Lake.

This assurance was given yesterday hard on the heels of a warning given at Sunday's meeting of Vancouver Island Affiliated Fish and Game Clubs that Western Mines proposes to dump tailings from its Strathcona Park mine into Buttle Lake.

The fish and game spokesman confirmed that the company has made such a proposal, but indicated approval may not be given.

A meeting will be held soon between mining company officials and engineers, parks branch representatives and fish and game branch representatives to decide just what to do with the knotty problem of disposal of the unsightly mine tailings.

Contrary to a general belief, mine tailings are not usually toxic. If they are, the mining company is losing money. All that should be left is inert material, the spokesman explained.

The Riordan Mine dumps its mine tailings in deep Kootenay Lake without harmful effects, he said.

But dumping of mine tailings has been tried at Benson Lake on northern Vancouver Island near Port McNeill . . . and that isn't working out too well. There the tailings are clouding the lake and permission to dump mine tailings is likely to be rescinded.

The spokesman admitted that heaps of impounded mine tailings can be an eyesore. If a lake is deep enough, that might be the best way to get rid of the tailings. But, the southern end of Buttle Lake, where the mine is located, is quite shallow.

Company engineers are now studying several different ways of disposing of the tailings and several swamp areas close to the mine are being considered as impounding areas.

The spokesman said fish and game representatives will go into the meeting with an open mind, ready to consider all proposals.

Bob Federsen, chairman of the Vancouver Island Affiliated Strathcona Park committee, issued the warning Sunday.

"I believe many people are aware of the toxic quality of tailings from mines and particularly copper mines. The dumping of these tailings into Buttle Lake would most certainly be detrimental, if not fatal, to the fish population of that lake. As Buttle Lake, Upper and Lower Campbell Lakes, and the whole Campbell system is inter-connected, a pollution of this entire waterway could result," he warned.

His committee report stated the opinion that "the appointment of the new minister of recreation and conservation, Kenneth Kiernan, who also holds the department of mines portfolio, has created a situation that can only add to the problems facing us as far as parks and wildlife are concerned.

"The tremendous financial backing that mine interests have can go a long way in making decisions in favor of mines, versus parks, much easier, especially when the ministers of both portfolios are one and the same man," the report stated.

"It only stands in reason that we who are interested in parks and their protection do not have the same opportunity to lobby and present our case in the same manner as the mining people, because we must work at other things to make our respective livelihoods. Therefore the time we can devote to parks and wildlife generally must be our spare time and the money we spend in traveling, meals, etc., comes out of our own pockets.

"With a situation such as this, it is no wonder that some of us have objected so strongly to his appointment. At least a minister with a single portfolio has one main interest and is therefore partial to that interest," the report continued.

The report recommended that to spur public interest in Strathcona Park and in a new Park Act for B.C., that a program of speakers showing color slides of parks be embarked upon, aimed at the advantages of having wilderness parks as well as other parks.

Save our wilderness park lands would be theme of the talks.

Federsen, who represents the Nanaimo fish and game club, was elected president of the Vancouver Island Affiliated. Ed Marston of Chemainus and Bill Haseldine of Parksville were elected vice-presidents; Fred Marshall, secretary-treasurer, and Brian Roberts of Victoria and Gary Randall of Port Alberni, directors.

The Affiliated decided Sunday to press its demands for picnic and camping sites in the Buttle Lake area and for wilderness trails in Strathcona Park.

Colt-of-Year Pulls Out Of Derby

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Hurry to Market, the big colt who won laurels as the United States top two-year-old in 1963, has been pulled out of the Kentucky Derby because of a hoof injury.

Trainer Dave Erb says that having a miracle, Hurry to Market may be away for at least six months.

Hurry to Market hasn't started as a three-year-old and he saw limited action as a two-year-old because of a similar ailment.

But the To Market-Hasty Girl colt won $190,374—the world's richest purse—in the Garden State Stakes last fall and established himself as a prime contender for the Kentucky Derby in May.

What About Goals? Canadiens Concerned

Not long ago the highest-scoring team in the National Hockey League, Montreal Canadiens have suddenly found opposing nets hard to find. Although they have won two and tied one of their last five games they have managed only five goals.

Whether it is a team slump which has made things tough for him or whether it's him that's in a slump, Jean Beliveau has dropped back in the individual point race.

NOW THIRD
The big Montreal centre is now third with his 54 points, only one in the last three games. Ahead are Chicago's Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita, who have 55 and 59 points, respectively.

Hull leads in goals with 30 and Beliveau in assists with 36. Reg Fleming of Chicago leads in penalties with 110 minutes and the Hawks lead as a team with 773 minutes as compared to 435 minutes which make New York Rangers the least penalized club in the league.

GOOD LEAD
Chicago's Glenn Hall, due mainly to the 11 goals poured in by Boston against Toronto last Saturday, has a good lead in the goalkeeping race for the Vezina Trophy. He is seven ahead of Montreal's Charlie Hodge and 11 ahead of Toronto's Johnny Bower, and the Canadiens and Leafs have played two fewer games.

Federation Supports Licence

VANCOUVER (CP)—Conditional approval of a proposed licence for salt water sports fishing was voted Tuesday by the B.C. Federation of Fish and Game Clubs.

Ed Meade, secretary-manager, said the federation approves a licence fee provided the federal fisheries department uses the income and statistical information from the licences to carry out research aimed at improving sports fisheries.

The Fisheries Council of Canada, representing Canadian fishing companies, proposed the licence in a brief to the federal-provincial fisheries conference in Ottawa Monday.

New Owner Fires Coach Of Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Jerry Wolman was approved Tuesday as the new owner of Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League and immediately dropped coach Nick Skorich.

"We will make a coaching change," Wolman told a press conference.

Wolman said he already has talked to three former pro coaches, including Joe Kuharich, former Washington Redskins coach and now an assistant to NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle, and Paul Brown, former coach of Cleveland Browns.

He declined to name the third man involved.

Wolman said the Eagles expected to decide on their new coach sometime during next week's league meeting in Miami Beach.

Wolman, a 35-year-old Washington building contractor, was given unanimous approval as new Eagles owner by the owners of the 13 other NFL clubs. He needed the vote of at least 11 officially to become holder of the Eagles franchise, which shareholders voted to sell him for $5,505,500 Dec. 5.

India Recovers

BOMBAY (Reuters)—India, after losing six wickets for 80 to an England team severely hit by injury and illness, raised its total to 225 without further loss by the close on the first day of the second cricket Test match here Tuesday.

Canada Nips Czech 'Bees'

PRAGUE (AP)—The Canadian Olympic hockey team edged Czechoslovakia's B squad 3-2 in a game at Ostrava last night.

The Czech news agency Ceteka said the teams were tied 1-1 after the first period, the Canadians led 2-1 after the second and the Czechs scored an unanswered goal in the third.

The Canadians were shut out 6-0 by the Czech Olympic team during their first game in Czechoslovakia last weekend.

Canadian goals were scored by George Swarbrick, Bob Fother and Gary Begg.

The travel-weary Canadians started slowly in the first period but came back strongly in the second and third periods. The score would have been higher if not for the top-notch goal-tending of Mikula, former Czech national team goalie.

The Canadians were tagged with seven of the 12 penalties handed out during the game.

Rugby Draw

Oak Bay Wanderers and JBAA played to a 3-3 draw Saturday in their first division Victoria Rugby Union match.

George Wilson kicked a penalty goal for JBAA and Dave Clarke scored a drop goal for Wanderers.

When Buick builds a LeSABRE--

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

Buick LeSabre 2-door Sport Coupe

Buick builds a high-priced car, and puts a low price on it

Lots of cars are in LeSabre's price class, but that's where the resemblance ends. For instance: Does anybody else in LeSabre's class treat you to that gentle Buick ride or impressive Buick performance and new gas economy? No. And who else gives you 15-inch wheels, finned aluminum front brakes, extra cushioning for middle-seat travelers, and separate heat ducts and controls for the rear seat? Right again: Nobody in LeSabre's field but LeSabre. If all this makes you think a LeSabre would look awfully nice in your garage, you should see how nicely it fits a budget. You know who to see about it, of course: your Buick dealer. Who else?

Farris Faces Trial

TORONTO (CP) — Ralph Farris, president of the $32,000,000 Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company, was committed for trial Tuesday on two perjury charges after a court heard evidence that company stock was distributed to former officials of four Ontario municipalities in 1967.

A third perjury charge against the 33-year-old Vancouver financier was dismissed when the Crown produced no evidence on it at a preliminary hearing. Farris' $2,500 cash bail was continued.

EX-MAYORS TESTIFY

Two former mayors testified to receiving NONG stock after their tenure of office in which the company got municipal gas franchises in their communities. They were Mr. Justice Leo Landreville, of the Ontario Supreme Court and former mayor of Sudbury, and Mrs. Wanda Miller of the town of Gravenhurst. The judge netted 7,500 shares and Mrs. Miller 150.

G. Kelly McLean of Victoria, former assistant to Farris, testified also he delivered 150 shares to former mayor Glen Costes of Bracebridge and 300 to William L. Moore of Orillia of which he said 150 was for Moore, whose law firm acted as Orillia town solicitors, and 150 for former Orillia mayor Wilbur Cramp.

PROBE HEARINGS

Farris was charged in connection with evidence he gave at 1968 and 1962 Ontario government investigations into the company's dealings in connection with the obtaining of gas franchises in this province. The firm operates distribution facilities on about 1,100 miles of the trans-Canada pipeline.

Magistrate Joseph Addison dismissed a charge that Farris had lied about his own holdings.

GAVE HIM SHARES

McLean testified Tuesday that Farris personally gave him the 600 shares he distributed, and former RCMP sergeant Arthur

Board Raps Petition

High school students should not be involved in the University of Victoria's protest against tuition fee increases, believes John Gough, schools superintendent for Greater Victoria district 61.

He was referring to the fact that the university students' council is enlisting the aid of the high schools to pass on to parents stamped addressed postcards, to be sent to the board of governors, protesting the fee increase.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS

"I believe this matter is controversial and should be resolved without involving the students in the public schools," Mr. Gough said.

He said that last year when students were on a campaign for more money for higher education, assistance of the high school students was sought but the board felt that the matter was political and controversial and the students were directed not to become involved.

STUDENTS TO PAY

Larry Devlin, chairman of the students' council at the University, said that the council feels that the possibility of a fee increase is important to the high school students because they are the ones who will have to pay it.

Students' councils of two Victoria district high schools, Esquimalt and Mount View, have agreed to distribute the post cards and two others, Oak Bay and Mount Douglas, were expected to agree soon. One high school refused to distribute the cards.

FOE 3,000 NAMES

The university students are circulating a petition and hope to get 3,000 names from the campus.

This petition will go to the board of governors with a brief asking for an investigation into the average students ability to pay the fees; more scholarship and bursary aid; a two-year moratorium on fee increases; publication of the difference between the grant the university received and the amount asked for.

Mr. Devlin said that he feels sure that the board of governors would consult student representatives before putting any increase into effect.

Purse Stolen From Woman

A purse containing $40, glasses and papers has been reported stolen from in front of the Cadboro Bay post office by Mrs. Elizabeth Fuchs, 3803 Cadboro Bay Road.

Mrs. Fuchs told police she carried the purse in her luggage rack on her bicycle. She left it there when she went into the building.

Jamboree-Bound

Two Victoria Boy Scouts, Lloyd Tilley of Fourth Cedar Hill Troop and Gary Angus of First Arbutus, have been chosen among 42 B.C. Scouts to attend the sixth American Jamboree at Valley Forge, Pa., in July. They will also visit the New York world's fair.

PTAs Urged to Send Protests on Welfare

Letters to MLAs

Parent Teacher Associations have been asked to write to their MLAs protesting the social welfare situation in B.C. and asking for a royal commission on the matter.

Mrs. R. B. Restall, president of the PTA Council in Victoria, said that all PTAs have received the letter and she plans to draw attention to it at the PTA Council meeting, Thursday at 8 p.m. in North Ward School.

NO IMPROVEMENT

The letter refers to the inadequacies of the social welfare system and points out that there will be no improvement until there is a strong public demand.

Studies by the Parent Teacher Federation show that there is a need for more trained personnel; pay for social workers comparable to that of high school teachers; more testing centres for emotionally disturbed children, and more use of schools for early recognition of disturbance.

DIAGNOSTIC TEAMS

Children committed to industrial schools should be classified in centres staffed by diagnostic teams.

Letters to MLAs should be sent out now because the legislative session will be starting soon, the PTA feels.

A similar brief was submitted by the PTA last year. The organization was thanked for its interest but nothing further was heard from the government.

Woman Falls 16 Feet

Wishy-Washy Act Allows Any Dress

By TED GASKELL

School dress regulations in the Public School Act are so wishy washy that a girl could dress as if she were training for Piccadilly and a teacher would have to be careful what she said in criticism, trustee Peter Bunn told members of the Monterey PTA last night.

Mr. Bunn was speaking after a report by Mrs. H. D. Middleton on the possibility of uniforms for junior high and high school students.

NEXT PERSON

Mrs. Middleton said that she felt uniforms would be valuable because there is now competition among pupils who feel they must dress as well as the next person although all could not afford to.

A sample girls' uniform which she brought along included a tie, sweater, skirt and simple tunic. Total cost, $16.

PRIVATE SCHOOLS

Mrs. Middleton said people were sending their children to private schools because it was cheaper because of the uniforms.

She also felt that there was stronger school spirit if uniforms were worn.

Mr. Bunn quoted from the Public Schools Act which states that every pupil must be clean and tidy and clothed as is customary and as sanctioned by the board.

GOOD TASTE

He quoted the standards which permitted the wearing of jewelry and makeup if in "good taste."

He called the regulations "wishy washy" and said that the schools can't force the children to wear uniforms but the board would back parents if they wanted to "set up something."

No action was taken by the PTA but discussions by members after the meeting indicated that the only way to get uniforms would be for a number of students to start the idea and hope other students would follow suit.

Victoria Benefactor

Dignity in Death Sought For England's Harold

Victoria resident Colin Rutherford, 86, of 1227 Beach Drive, is a benefactor of an 11th-century abbey at Waltham, England, it was disclosed yesterday.

With a recent cheque for £2,000—a about $6,000—Mr. Rutherford brought his total donations to the abbey to date to $30,000. His connection with the town of Waltham, where King Harold built the abbey, is that he was born there.

A few years ago on a visit to England, Mr. Rutherford saw an ad in a London magazine asking for donations for the restoration of the abbey. When he returned to Canada he decided to become a benefactor.

Mr. Rutherford originally came to Victoria in 1923 on his retirement as a china merchant. He is married with a married son living in Victoria, and has a sister in England.

The abbey, which is in the centre of Waltham Cross, was started by King Harold in 1060 and completed at the time of his death at the Battle of Hastings in 1066.

"The main reason for my father's decision to donate," said Colin Rutherford, Jr., of 2570 Nottingham Road, "was that King Harold's grave was a rather meagre affair and he wanted it to have more dignity."

Mr. Rutherford, Jr., said that it was hoped to hold a dedication ceremony at Waltham on completion of the abbey's restoration later this year.

"Although my father would like to attend, I doubt if he will be able," he said.

Woolco Store Coming

By JACK FRY

The mystery of what firm will become Greater Victoria's fourth major department store was solved last night when it was learned that a subsidiary of F. W. Woolworth Co. Ltd. will go into Town-and-Country shopping centre.

A. B. Munro, Woolworth's district manager for Canada, told the Colonist last night from Toronto that a Woolco department store is planned for Town-and-Country.

Woolco, a Canadian subsidiary of Woolworth's, has department stores in Brantford, Windsor, Sudbury and Hamilton, and is building new stores in Sydney, N.S., and Calgary.

It appeared from plans shown to Saanich council Monday that part of the proposed Woolco department store will occupy a portion of the shopping centre where the Woolworth store is now located.

SIMILAR STORES

It is understood that the Canadian Woolco stores were opened after similar stores in the United States proved successful in combating discount operations.

A discount operation is one in which goods are sold in a warehouse atmosphere devoid of normal department store trimmings, explained a city store executive.

The mystery about which firm will occupy the Town-and-Country premises arose Monday when Robert G. Bental of Dominion Construction Company Limited obtained approval in principle from Saanich council for construction of a department store there.

Mr. Bental declined to name the firm with which his company has a contract but said after the meeting it will be about a $2,000,000 project and can start within a few weeks if no major obstacle is encountered.

There was speculation that Simpsons might be locating here, since the T. Eaton Company, Hudson's Bay Company and Woodward Department Stores Ltd. already have stores here.

Septic Tanks Not Draining

Houses east of Mt. Douglas Park have so much water in the ground that septic tanks are not draining, says a housewife who is circulating a petition for installation of a sewer.

Mrs. Arthur Thornhill said she and her husband bought a house six months ago at 1571 McMorran Avenue, but that when he started to dig up the ground to plant grass, all he got was water.

"The ground is so saturated that plumbing facilities do not function properly and 'you have to be careful how much water you use,' said the upset housewife.

Things got worse when the winter rains started. The basement is always cold and damp, drainage ditches seem to be frequently plugged and sewage water is right under the surface of the ground, said Mrs. Thornhill.

The Thornhills are circulating a petition among their neighbors, asking for installation of a sewer and for weekly garbage collection. Their telephone number is 477-4753 and they were looking for more names last night.

When the Water Falls the State Dinner Starts

By KEN JOHNSON

An illuminated, man-made waterfall controlled by a special time-switch will light up tonight in the gardens of Government House to mark the beginning of the state dinner, before the opening of the legislature tomorrow.

The waterfall, installed by government workmen, is one of the newest and most interesting features of the spring and summer flower display at Government House.

At night it will add sparkle to the floral layout of the grounds. In the meantime, Government House head gardener Leonard Butterworth is currently keeping a wary eye on the weather ...

and on the buds he hopes will bloom in the spring.

Since fall, the six gardeners who tend the $40,000 miniature Kew Gardens developed in 1958, have been planting and seeding to prepare what is hoped will be the biggest, best and most colorful garden display in Canada.

Popular with Government House visitors is the Rose Garden of the Ages, which traces the history of roses from the earliest bramble to the latest variety. Other specialized flower beds include a rhododendron display, a splash of crocuses, a variety of tulips, daffodils, wall-flowers and early flowering shrubs.

In the court garden, camellias will flourish, while dwarf bulbs adorn the intricate rockery.

Facing the northeast section of Government House will be a display of junc-de-graffs hybrid lilies, while by the pond near the summer house, visitors will see a vista of tulips interspersed with Siberian wallflowers.

Although severe frost could spoil parts of the grand display, Mr. Butterworth does not anticipate damage.

The historic rose garden, he says, will be at its best in June.

Mr. Butterworth, who came to Victoria from Yorkshire 13 years ago, says he has no secret formula for his garden wonderland, "although I have introduced a few English ideas."

Yet there is one thing about Mr. Butterworth's techniques of interest to amateur horticulturists. He advocates the home-grown.

"Almost all the bulbs used in our display were bought on Vancouver Island," he said. "There are certainly no better iris grown anywhere than on the Saanich peninsula."

Burns' Great Love Stirs Modern Controversy

By EILEEN LEABOYD

The birth 205 years ago of Robert Burns, bard of Scotland, will be celebrated in far-flung corners of the world Jan. 25—and at Holyrood House in Victoria in particular.

"Rabbe," the fair genius who immortalized his race, the poet without predecessor or imitator, has been talked about, sung about, written about—not only for his nobly-gifted poetry, but for his tempestuous private life.

For Burns had a great, consuming love for a young Scottish girl with a sweet nature and a merry laugh, called Jean Armour. In fact he married her three times, and 16 of his poems are written for her or about her.

A descendant of Jean Armour, Miss Yvonne H. Stevenson of Victoria, is writing a book about the Burns-Armour romance tentatively entitled "Coming Through the Rye."

Miss Stevenson is Jeanie's great-great niece and she intends to tell a tale that will put history straight.

"It's really not so much that history is wrong, as that people of today, particularly in the U.S., are reshaping the facts," said Miss Stevenson, who is the same height (5'9"), and has the same black eyes as her controversial ancestor. "They are saying now, that Burns' great love was 'Highland Mary,' but he lived with her only a few weeks."

And who, reading these fair lines to his Jeanie, can doubt Burns' love for her?

"I see thee dancing o'er the green
Thy waist and hips, thy limbs are clean,
Thy tempting lips, thy roguish eyes—
By Heaven and Earth I love thee!"

"By night, by day, a-field, at home,
The thoughts o' thee my breast inflame,
And ay I muse and sing thy name—
I only live to love thee."

"Thou wert doom'd to wander on,
Beyond the sea, beyond the sun,
Till my last weary hand was run,
Till then—and then—I'd love thee!"

Miss Stevenson, who likes to call the poet "Rabbe" rather than Bobby ("Bobby has such an English tone"), tells how Rabbe and his Jean met when she was 19 and he 25.

"Many biographers have painted the Armour family as hard on their love affair, hard on Burns," said Miss Stevenson.

MISS YVONNE STEVENSON

son, "but the fact is Jean's father was only trying to do his parental duty."

"You see Jean became pregnant and gave birth to twins. Burns gave her a piece of paper, in which he acknowledged her as common-law wife. Naturally, her father, a pillar of the kirk who loved his daughter, was furious. He told her that her piece of paper was worth nothing and tore it up, and forbid her to see Burns again."

"Jean's father knew Burns to be a poor farmer who was too free in his association with the lassies; he was only trying to protect her."

"Burns desperately wanted to marry Jean properly, but he was too poor to marry, so he gave her the paper as a protection."

"In trying to show the Armours in a less-harsh light,

I have no idea of tearing down Rabbe Burns. He too, is a much finer man than history paints him—deeply emotional, quite religious in spite of his love of life, and a man of sound classical education."

"Well, Burns left the village of Mauchline, Ayr, where they had been brought up, and went to Edinburgh. In a brief time, only about 1½ years, he became lionized in society."

"He was a fascinating man with magnetic personality. Girls couldn't resist him—neither could duchesses. But he was madly in love with Jean, and returned to Ayr where her father, seeing him really serious about her, sanctioned a renewed association. Jeanie became pregnant again—again twins."

This time they signed a paper in front of a lawyer.

A few months later, they were married again, this time in a church. Altogether Jeanie bore him nine children, but few lived.

In the first set of twins a girl died, a boy lived; in the second set, girls, they only lived a week; the next two sons lived and the next two little girls died.

The last child was the saddest of all. It was a little boy called Maxwell and he was born the very day of his father's funeral.

"Poor Jeanie," said Miss Stevenson, "couldn't even go to Burns' funeral as she was in labor. The child just lived a few hours."

Miss Stevenson, a professional free-lance writer, thoroughly researched her story in Scotland. All in all, she read and examined 300 letters. She got special permission from the Scottish National Portrait Gallery to use pictures of Jean Armour never published before. The Burns Federation, Scotland, also gave her much help.

"My main ambition is to alter the popular image of Jean. She was not a wanton who couldn't say 'no'—she was a girl deeply in love with one man—Rabbe Burns."

Miss Stevenson said it was true the immortal poet had many flirtations, but it was to Jeanie he gave his all-abiding love.

"He was not an easy man to live with, but Jeanie understood him. She had a vivid sense of humor and she was the right woman for him."

It seems only fitting that it is the great-great niece of flashing-eyed Jeanie with the "roguish een" who will reply to the toast to the lassies, at the Burns' dinner on Saturday night.

"O Jeanie, thou hast stolen away my soul!" said Rabbe.

And if he didn't know, who did?

Designers' Curves... Omen

By SHEILA WALSH

FLORENCE, Italy (UPI) — A "curves for women" campaign by Italian designers was in high gear Monday in the second day of the spring-summer high fashion previews.

Clothes that not only were feminine but sometimes downright sexy made their appearances here yesterday in the boutique and casual collections that opened the Florence shows for international buyers and press.

With 15 of Italy's top designers still to be heard from, curves still were controversial. Fashion experts felt it was too soon to call a trend towards more female clothes. But they did say the fondness of some designers displayed for soft curves might be considered an omen.

The designers on the schedule for first day of high fashion collections were Antonelli, Emilio Pucci, Biki and de Barbazan.

Frederico Forquet caught the eye of the fashion world the night before with a lavish casual collection based on flattering pastels, clinging silks and lady-like curves.

He proved that women do not really have to get dressed up as maharajahs, cossacks or sheiks in order to lounge fashionably.

He gave a new look to tunic-and-pants "at home" outfits by fitting the tunics. He presented a hip-length, three-quarter sleeve tunic in a soft, lavender-toned floral print. The tunic was fitted, so were the lavender shantung pants, and the model undulated rather than walked down the runway.

Another outfit that caught the mood of the Forquet collection was a diaphanous pink and white silk, floor-length toga.

Worn over white shantung pants, the light toga moulded itself to the figure as the wearer walked. Veneziani also liked a soft look for elegant casuals. She showed supple leather boleros, embroidered at neckline and cuffs, over pants and blouses in color combinations such as pink and hunting green.

For summer cruises, Veneziani presented pink and pale green-toned dresses with soft, the necklines and cape backs or floating overskirts.

Galitine topped bikinis with long line pullovers and turbans. Her turbans were tall and practical, following the lines of a towel wrapped around freshly washed or wet hair.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I just wanted to let you know you had a hand in helping a prisoner become rehabilitated.

I married my husband without knowing he had violated his parole. It was a terrible shock to me when he was taken from our home and had to serve 16 months in prison.

During that time I wrote to you for moral support and guidance. You told me how I could best help him and myself. I visited him 34 times and wrote him 445 letters. One of my letters contained a clipping from your column. It was your definition of maturity.

My husband is home now and we are starting our marriage again—this time on the right foot. He told me your column on maturity gave him real insight into his own life and made him realize where and why he had failed. He read it so many times he memorized it. I might add that column is tattered and worn, but he still carries it with him.

Thank you, Ann, for helping someone very dear to me—and God bless you. — A VERY GRATEFUL WOMAN.

Dear Friend: Thank you for your generous expression of gratitude. The most rewarding part of this work is knowing that I can occasionally provide someone with solace, strength or self-understanding.

Since the column your husband is carrying in his wallet is now tattered and worn, I am herewith re-printing my definition of maturity—especially for him.

Maturity is many things. First it is the ability to base judgment on the Big Picture—the Long Haul. It means being able to pass up the fun-for-the-minute and select the course of action which will pay off later. One of the characteristics of infancy is the "I want it NOW approach." Grown-up people can wait.

Maturity is the ability to stick with a project or a situation until it is finished. The adult who is constantly changing jobs, changing friends, and changing mates—is immature. He cannot stick it out because he has not grown up. Everything seems to turn sour after awhile.

Maturity is the capacity to face unpleasantness, frustration, discomfort and defeat without complaint or collapse. The mature person knows he can't have everything his own way. He is able to defer to circumstances, to other people—and to time.

Maturity is the ability to live up to your responsibilities, and this means being dependable. It means keeping your word. And dependability equates with personal integrity. Do you mean what you say—and say what you mean?

The world is filled with people who can't be counted on. People who never seem to come through in the clutch. People who can break promises and substitute alibis for performance. They show up late—or not at all. They are confused and disorganized. Their lives are a chaotic maze of unfinished business.

Maturity is the ability to make a decision and stand by it. Immature people spend their lives exploring endless possibilities and then do nothing. Action requires courage. And there is no maturity without courage.

Maturity is the ability to harness your abilities and your energies and to do more than is expected. The mature person refuses to settle for mediocrity. He would rather aim high and miss the mark than aim low—and make it.

Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

In going over my mail records for the past six months, I was surprised to find how many of these letters contained questions pertaining to the growing of potatoes. I wouldn't have thought the average backyard gardener would be interested in this crop, as potatoes are so cheap and plentiful in the stores, and unlike tomatoes and strawberries, store-bought spuds are usually superior in quality to home-grown ones.

It is quite evident from my mail, however, quite a few of my readers do in fact operate a potato patch in their gardens and not too successfully, and it occurred to me it might be helpful to discuss today some of the most commonly asked questions.

Q. Is it okay to save potatoes from this year's crop to plant as seed potatoes next spring?

A. If the stored tubers seem to be clean and healthy and of good quality, they can be saved and used for seed, but for one year only. In aphid-infested gardens, the stock usually deteriorates every year to some extent from virus diseases spread by sap-sucking insects, and it is best to replace the planting stock every second year with certified seed or certified potato eyes.

Q. Is it necessary to buy certified seed potatoes? Why can't ordinary grocery potatoes be used for planting?

A. Potatoes intended for eating rather than planting are sometimes treated with a growth-inhibiting chemical to keep them from sprouting in storage. While these tubers are perfectly wholesome to eat, it isn't any use planting a potato which has lost its ability to sprout.

Q. Are the potato eyes listed in the seed catalogues satisfactory?

A. Yes, and they have certain advantages over whole tubers. They do not produce as heavy a crop as whole or cut seed tubers, but they are much cheaper to buy and may be shipped by mail. Moreover, they are available in a much wider range of varieties than whole seed tubers, and at their low cost of around two cents an eye, it becomes possible to do a little experimenting to find the variety best suited to your soil and to your family's taste.

One idea which is finding wide acceptance is planting certified potato eyes for the special purpose of raising your own seed potatoes for the following year's planting. This spring, for instance, you would plant enough whole or cut tubers to supply the immediate needs of your family, but you would also put in a row or two of eyes to supply the tubers for next year's planting.

Q. My potatoes are invariably scabby. How can I grow clean-skinned spuds?

A. Scab is a fungus infection — sort of a skin disease of potatoes. The flesh of an infected tuber is quite wholesome, but there is quite a loss through having to peel them more deeply than normally. The infecting spores may live in the soil, on the skins of stored tubers, and in bins and boxes which have contained scabby potatoes.

Start with clean, certified seed and make sure they do not come into contact with infected tubers or containers. Plant in a portion of the garden which has not previously borne a crop of potatoes. Cover each seed piece in its furrow with a good shovelful of half-rotted leaves before filling in.

Two contributing factors which favor scab disease are lime and hen manure. Do not use chicken manure on the potato plot and do not plant on freshly limed ground. Potatoes do need a little lime for optimum growth, but the residue from an application given to the previous year's crop should be sufficient.

ART BUCHWALD Clouds the Issue

Glenn or Gorilla in Orbit?

WASHINGTON — Now that Lt. Col. John Glenn has thrown his space helmet into the political ring everyone is asking the same questions. Will Glenn have enough thrust in his Ohio booster to get into the Democratic orbit?

How much thrust will his political rocket be able to withstand if he does win the nomination, and can he survive the weightlessness which his opponents charge he has as a politician?

The question is, how do you flight a hero running for a political office?

To find out we talked to one of Col. Glenn's opponents, who asked that we did not use his name.

"Sir, what do you think is the best approach to oppose a hero astronaut in a Senatorial race?"

"I'll say he didn't do it."

"He didn't go into space?"

"That's right. I'll say that they put a gorilla in his place and he only posed for the pictures."

"But isn't that pretty rough?"

"This is politics, boy, and you have to plant seeds of doubt about your opponent if you want to get elected."

"But everyone saw him on television. I don't think that charge will hold up."

"Well, then, I'll demand to have a debate with him. I'd like to ask him several questions."

"Such as?"

"Why did he have trouble with his first shield when he tried to re-enter the earth's atmosphere? I think the people have a right to know. I'll also accuse him of yawning and pitching when he should have been rolling and orbiting. I have no intention of pulling my punches."

"Those are strong charges."

"That isn't all. I'd also like to ask him why he couldn't get out of his own capsule when it was placed on a destroyer, and why he wasted taxpayer's money by blowing open the door."

"I think he was ordered to do it," we said.

"That's for the voters to decide. I think the electorate should also know why he fired his retro-rockets over Florida when he was a resident of Ohio. Doesn't that sound pretty fishy to you?"

"The way you put it, it does."

"I think Col. Glenn is a very brave man, but does a person who has only completed three orbits around the earth have the experience to deal with the problems of world? After all, he didn't stop off anywhere and see anybody."

"But he did get around," we said.

"But look at the angle he saw things from. Is this the angle the voters want one of their representatives to have?"

"You certainly have raised a lot of questions," we said.

"I intend to raise more. If Glenn wants to get into the political arena then I'm going to fight fire with fire. I never had any interest in space before, but if forced into it I won't shrink my responsibilities."

"What will you do?"

"Well, for a start, my new campaign slogan is 'If I am elected I will go to the moon.'"

JACK SMITH Bored to Distraction

Offbeat Weekend Lost

Some time ago I suggested that we have seven weekends instead of one, thus alleviating traffic congestion and the feast and famine cycle suffered by restaurants, theatres and other establishments.

One seventh of the people would take Sunday and Monday as their weekend, another seventh Monday and Tuesday, and so on.

Nothing has come of this proposal. Perhaps the world isn't ready yet. But as I said before, I find no serious objection to the idea, except possibly that clergymen would have to preach every day, instead of just on Sunday.

So I haven't been able to move the world. But I have given the plan a try myself. My weekend is now Sunday and Monday.

I'll admit there are some drawbacks. My first Monday was somewhat a disaster. I was up early, drinking coffee and looking toward a really stimulating day. Then everybody began to leave.

First our older son, "So long," he said and walked out.

"Where's he going?" I asked. "I wanted to play golf with him."

"School, of course," my wife said. "Remember, he goes to college."

"So long," said our younger son.

"Where's he going?" I asked.

"School," she said. "He's a senior."

She was putting on her hat.

"Where are you going," I asked.

"PTA meeting," she said. "D'you mind if I take the car?"

She drove off down the hill. I was stranded, left to my own devices, perhaps to die, in an empty house.

I thought of washing the breakfast dishes but it didn't seem exciting enough. I read The Ballad of the Sad Café, but it's a short book. I turned on television and watched Wally Beery in The Mighty McGurk. Wally isn't as good as he was when I was a boy.

I washed the breakfast dishes.

There is something therapeutic about having one's arms in warm soapy water up to the elbows.

I made a sandwich and played Beethoven's Ninth on the phonograph. It was depressing, all that tritonic yodeling at the end. One should not play Beethoven on a lonely Monday.

I put on a jazz medley with Jack Teagarden singing I'm the Sheik of Araby. That was better.

I got a 54-ton and went out in the yard and took a few swings. I always feel silly, though, swinging a golf club at nothing but air. I waited awhile for the telephone to ring, but it didn't.

It occurred to me that the circumstances were ideal for a nap, the house being empty and quiet. But I couldn't sleep.

I realized what they had done to me. They had made me a prisoner in my own house.

When my wife came home I took the car and went to the office.

The Odd Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Star's Next of Kin: Press Agent!

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — When Van Johnson was asked at a New York hospital to name his next of kin before his four-hour operation last week, he gave the name of his press agent! He has a wife and a daughter, but he does not hear from them. He did hear, however, from his host of friends. Renowned Russell sent Van a pair of silk pajamas to wear in the hospital. Barbara Stanwyck called; Jean Crawford sent a letter, and Anna Nothern prayed in church for him. Marilyn Maxwell called. Ditto Janet Leigh, and so many others.

Rita Moreno has set up housekeeping in London. She says, "No more pictures in Hollywood. I'm tired of being fiery with flaming nostrils."

Jean Bennett is stepping out of her Never Too Late play in London and veteran musical comedy star Evelyn Laye is stepping in.

Marlon Brando said to writer-producer Stanley Shapiro at the start of their Bedtime Story. "I'll do anything you tell me to." "And you know something?" said Stanley. "He did. He was a doll." I hear that Marlon really lets himself go in this comedy. Normally I would say, "A comedy by Brando is wrong." But with Stanley, who wrote Pillow Talk among other comedy hits, at the helm, I am looking forward to laughing with Marlon.

Robert Goulet and Andy Williams were discussing the impossibility of newcomers getting a break in the movies when I saw them on the I'd Rather Be Rich set.

"I was a star on Broadway in Camelot for two years," said Robert, "and no one would give me a chance here." Andy has been a top selling television and record star for several years yet this is his first film. "Imagine how tough it is for those who have not had these advantages," said Goulet. Well, they have to start like Bob and Andy. In small out-of-the-way places, then graduating to Broadway and television. In the old days there was vaudeville. And after seeing those wonderful acts on the Ed Sullivan show, I'd like to see vaudeville come back into the theatres.

Carolyn Jones reconciled quietly with husband Aaron Spelling . . . Sean Connery called to say he will sit out the James Bond movie, Goldfinger. "I'm afraid of being typecast."

Jack Lemmon is coaching Mickey Callan in the art of impersonating a woman. In The New Interns Mickey has to disguise himself as a nurse. Lemmon was a smash as a female in Some Like It Hot and is qualified to give Mickey some pointers.

Alan Lerner's first choice for the Sir Lancelot role in the movie version of Camelot is French star Alain Delon. Why not Robert Goulet who merely created the part on Broadway? I assume they will keep the music, and who could sing those lovely songs better than Robert? But perhaps this is all too logical. I hope they get Richard Burton to repeat his King Arthur role. But perhaps he is too expensive now.

Bail $12,000 in Rape Case

Bail was set at $12,000 in Saanich magistrate's court Tuesday for an unemployed shipyard worker charged with raping two 18-year-old University of Victoria students Jan. 8 and Jan. 20.

Larry Kenneth Kanester, 2543 Wark, faces the charges. Saanich prosecutor Kenneth Murphy asked for "very substantial bail for the man due to the gravity and number of the offences."

Kanester was remanded to Jan. 28 to fix a day for preliminary hearing. Victoria lawyer Alan Bigelow will act as defence counsel.

The "completely unpremeditated" theft of $33 from the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Douglas and Bay, Jan. 7, has netted a man a three-month jail term.

Donald Campbell, 335 Gorge Road, was sentenced in city court after he told Magistrate William Oatler he had acted on impulse, later gave himself up and made restitution.

Magistrate Oatler indicated the man would probably not spend the term in jail, but would receive psychiatric treatment.

A man found in a store at 3 a.m. Jan. 17 told police he "wanted to get some money to pay his lawyer."

Leo Richard Nadeau, 23, 1212

Carlisle, pleaded guilty Friday to breaking and entering and theft and was remanded in Saanich court yesterday to Jan. 23 for a probation report.

Gary M. Kelly, 3179 Alder, was fined $250 and had his driver's licence suspended when he pleaded guilty in city court to dangerous driving.

Court was told Kelly's car was seen weaving on Cook Dec. 22 with its headlights out. Several cars had to veer sharply to miss the car. The ride ended when Kelly's car smashed into a power pole.

"Automobiles are becoming more lethal than guns in this country," said Magistrate William Oatler. "This is disgraceful. You might have killed people."

Kelly said he could not remember anything.

A man identified as Robert Warden, found drinking beer in the Dominion Hotel parking lot, was fined $50 in city court when he pleaded guilty to drinking in a public place. He pleaded guilty to the charge.

Robert E. March, 24, was fined $50 in city court when he pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance. Court was told he was fighting with another man early Dec. 15 in the 600 block Gorge Road.

Vivian Passmore, 921 Pandora, was sentenced in city court to three months imprisonment on a charge of breaking and entering and theft.

She was charged after she stole three bottles of liquor from the apartment of her former boy friend Jan. 14.

Sentence Today On Drug Count

John Morwood Caird was convicted of illegal possession of narcotics by an assize court jury yesterday after deliberations lasting only 21 minutes and he will be sentenced at 11 a.m. today.

Caird was alleged to have obtained prescriptions from several Victoria doctors without telling them he was being treated by more than one doctor.

SUSPICIOUS DOCTOR
Caird was arrested after a doctor became suspicious about the amount of drugs Caird required and telephoned the RCMP.

George Gregory acted as crown prosecutor in the trial before Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson. Caird acted as his own defence counsel.

PREVIOUS CONVICTIONS
Under cross examination Caird admitted to previous convictions for possession in 1940, 1958 and 1962. He also admitted he had gone to a number of doctors for narcotics.

Mr. Justice Wilson, in a charge to the jury which lasted only 12 minutes, said the accused's own admissions left them little alternative but to convict.

Caird gave evidence on his own behalf but called no other witnesses.

Bookmarks Macabre

Book borrowers from Victoria's public library will get a macabre reminder of the dangers of smoking if they use new bookmarks delivered yesterday.

They show a cigarette with the smoke curling into the word "Cancer." They will be distributed throughout B.C. by the Canadian Cancer Society and will also be available at public health departments and school boards.

Courthouse Free Soon

Old courthouse in Bastion Square is expected to be free for B.C. Maritime Museum to move in this year, says Commodore Angus Boulton, chairman of museum directors. He spoke while asking Oak Bay council for grant increase to $1,000 from $250. Similar bids are going to other councils as new home will see budget increase to $40,000 from $24,000 and revenue will be only $25,000. Courthouse site is expected to attract 50,000 visitors a year compared to 22,000 now.

All-Number Telephones Here Within Two Years

Telephones in Greater Victoria will be converted to the all-number calling system within two years but it is not known yet when customers will be able to dial long distance without the help of a long-distance telephone operator.

The B.C. Telephone Company's 1966 directories will have seven-digit numbers instead of the two-letter and five-digit listings, and the only reminder of the old system will be the no-longer-used alphabet on the customers' telephone dials.

MAY, 1962
"The conversion to all figure telephone numbers is proceeding according to the schedule set by B.C. Telephone in May, 1962," a spokesman said yesterday.

All-number calling (ANC) will have been introduced to all but eight of the company's 154 exchanges by the end of 1964. Still to be fully converted are Victoria, Nanaimo, North Vancouver, West Vancouver, New Westminster, Vancouver, Richmond and Terrace, he said.

"To date, Victoria has 41 per cent converted, Vancouver has 43 per cent converted and Nanaimo has 40 per cent converted."

NO INDICATION
B.C. Telephone hopes to bring direct distance dialing to Victoria, but there was no indication when this will come about.

Three exchanges on Vancouver Island—Duncan, Nanaimo and Courtenay—already have direct distance dialing service, in which up to 13 digits are dialed by the customer who wants to reach someone in eastern Canada or the United States.

Contributory Pension Plan to Include 7,000,000

By ALAN DONNELLY
OTTAWA (CP)—Some 7,000,000 Canadian employees, residents of all provinces but Quebec, will be wrapped into the proposed contributory Canada Pension Plan to be submitted to Parliament this year. They and their employers will split the cost of contributions into the plan—two per cent of employee earnings up to $4,500 a year, or an annual payment of up to $90, for at least the first five years of the plan's operation. Their return: A monthly pension at age 70 running as high as $75 a month after 10 years of contributions, if their average earnings during that period exceed the $4,500-a-year limit on pensionable earnings.

These are the chief landmarks in the revised pension plan outlined to provincial premiers by Prime Minister Pearson in a Jan. 11 letter and made public Monday.

But there are complications and fine print in the plan designed to meet the varying situations of virtually every employee, aged 18 to 65, who will be required under law to be part of the plan.

The plan won't apply in Quebec, which is developing its own scheme. It won't be compulsory for the self-employed, members of the armed forces, or for employees of businesses where it would be difficult to administer. Self-employed persons may join voluntarily, but must pay the full two-per-cent contribution on their own.

Then, such people, if eligible, could collect the maximum $75 payment under the Canada Pension Plan, provided part-time earnings from wages and salaries don't exceed $900 a year. If they also chose the $51 old age security payment at age 65, they would get a total $126 a month.

IN FIVE YEARS

However, this scheme of starting pensions at age 65 won't go into full effect until five years. After the first year, pensions could start at age 68, after the second year at age 70, and so on until the plan has been operating for five years when both the universal and the contributory pensions could be taken at age 65.

Between ages 65 and 68, the contributory pension will be reduced if a pensioner's outside earnings from wages and salaries exceed $900 a year.

PENSION WILL DROP

The pension will drop $1 for every $2 of earnings over that mark. Thus earnings of $1,200 a year—$100 a month—would mean a cut in the pension of Queen was still moored.

Sobbing Mother Relates Death of Five Children

CAMPBELL RIVER—A sobbing woman told a coroner's jury here yesterday how she battled her way out of a floating car, reached back in to assist her husband out—and then watched the car and her three children sink into the icy sea.

Joy Fowler was giving evidence into the deaths of her children Kenneth, 9, Debbie, 7, and Gordon, 4. They drowned Friday night at the Campbell River ferry slip after their father Ron drove off the dock, a year—$100 a month—would mean a cut in the pension of Queen was still moored.

A barricade, usually lowered when the ferry pulls out, was not in place at the time of the accident.

Ferry service employees testified at the inquest that because of high winds, the barrier would not stay in place and had to be lifted.

locking device before each sailing.

Mrs. Fowler broke down while testifying that she managed to open a window on the passenger side of the front seat and battled her way from the upside-down car.

She said she reached back into the vehicle and pulled her husband out, thinking at first it was one of the children.

The vehicle then sank in 25 feet of water and the parents were pulled from the water by ferry workers.

No Victoria Street For B.C. Pioneer

City public works committee would like to see a street named in honor of Amor de Cosmos. But, aldermen don't think it appropriate that the name of the pioneer newspaper publisher and second B.C. premier should be attached to the one street for which a change of name is currently being sought.

The suggestion of a street name so that Amor de Cosmos would be "permanently remembered" in Victoria came from

J. C. M. Ogelsby, assistant professor of history at the University of Victoria.

Postmaster A. M. Davies, meanwhile, has appealed to the city to change the name of Stelly Street where the "one and only householder" on the street frequently has his mail delivered to Stelly's Cross Road in North Saanich.

Ald. Millard Mooney said: "If it's worth commemorating this pioneer figure, it has to be done properly."

No Money, Says Edgelow

City History Hinges on Cash

Lack of funds loomed yesterday as a major difficulty in the drive to preserve historical landmarks in Victoria.

There was general agreement in finance committee with Mayor R. B. Wilson's statement that legislation or some other provisions are needed to preserve links with the past.

SYMPATHETIC

But Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow voiced the thoughts of others when he said: "Definitely we are sympathetic to the idea of preserving our historic landmarks; but we haven't got any money to spend."

Mayor Wilson has agreed to issue invitations on behalf of Dr. Hugh Boraman to a meeting early in February at which there will be discussion on the founding of a preservation society.

STILL HEADACHE

The issue of vehicles without commercial plates who use loading zones is continuing to cause a headache for the traffic committee.

The committee received a complaint from a citizen who left his private car unattended in a loading zone while delivering goods to a thrift store. When he returned there was a traffic ticket on the windshield.

NOT FOUND YET

Officials reported loading zones are restricted to vehicles carrying municipal commercial plates. They conceded this was unfair to some motorists who have goods to unload, but added a more satisfactory solution hasn't yet been found.

The committee recommended approval of a change in regulations for passenger unloading zones at downtown hotels to permit a stop of not more than 10 minutes while baggage is unloaded.

Approval was given to starting construction of sidewalks on Rose Street between Hillside and Tolmie Avenue. Total estimated cost of the job is $13,165 and the committee was told there is $7,000 in surplus funds that can be used on this project.

Tanganyika Cools Off

DAE ES SALAAM, Tanganyika (Reuters)—President Julius Nyerere went on national radio Tuesday night to assure his nation he was not injured by Monday's army revolt, in which 15 died and more than 100 were wounded. He indicated the mutineers won their demand for replacement of British commanders of a Tanganyikan army battalion.

OLDER WORKERS

There is provision for some benefit—though small—to older workers nearing retirement age when the plan starts, expected perhaps by next Jan. 1. Other arrangements cover, for example, housewives who are intermittently employed, persons who don't want to wait to age 70 to start collecting, and those whose employment is interrupted by sickness.

The contributory Canada Pension Plan is separate from the universal $75 monthly old age security pension paid to all starting at age 70. Thus a retired person over 70 could collect a maximum $150 under both plans.

NEW OPTIONS

Eventually there will be a new optional provision, for those wanting it, whereby the old age security pension can be paid—at scaled-down rates—starting as early as age 65. If begun at age 65, the pension would be about $31 a month for life. Based on life-expectancy charts, the over-all amount paid till death would be the same as the full $75 monthly starting at age 70.

OTHER PROVISIONS

There also will be provision for starting the supplementary Canada Pension Plan payments at age 65 for those who retire

Bids Called For Theatre

Centennial Square committee yesterday decided to call tenders immediately for construction of the new civic theatre.

Council recently agreed all financing on the $375,000 theatre should come from the T. S. McPherson estate. The theatre is to be named the McPherson Playhouse.

Mountie Saddle For LBJ

President Johnson now has an RCMP saddle to add to his collection at LBJ Ranch. This was Prime Minister Pearson's gift when the two leaders met yesterday.

Johnson presented Pearson with a large map case, an electronic clock and a leather-bound volume of treasures of the National Gallery of Art. In addition to other gifts, the two leaders exchanged photographs.

More Today

Pearson, Johnson Parley

WASHINGTON (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson met for 2½ hours Tuesday night for talks which a spokesman said focused mainly on Canadian-American affairs, and especially economic relations.

A member of the Canadian group here said later that "a most excellent understanding" was established between Johnson and Pearson during friendly, informal discussions.

SESSIONS TODAY

Detailed discussions were reserved for sessions today at the White House.

Pearson, shortly after his arrival by helicopter, stood next to the president and said in part: "Our friendship is deep and our understanding is great. But we have many problems, of course, because our contacts are so close and so important to each other."

BASIC NATURE

"We will solve those problems, I know, because of the depth of our friendship and the basic nature of our understanding."

Johnson, standing nearby a head taller than the prime minister and Mrs. Pearson, said he looked forward to "fruitful and worthwhile discussions."

Today Pearson will place a wreath at the grave of the late president Kennedy.

MINUTES SAVE DOZENS

$1,000,000 Blast, Fire
Destroys Most of School

$1,000,000 Fire Rages Away

Fire preceded by unexplained blast rages on way to $1,000,000 damage yesterday at Cowichan High School. One wing of building was total loss, but none of 500 students at school was injured. Fire lasted several hours. See other pictures, Page 11.—(Ross A. Scott)

By ALAN CAMPBELL and
KLAUS MUENTER

LAKE COWICHAN—Dozens of children missed injury—possibly death—here yesterday when a $1,000,000 fire roared through the senior high school exactly three minutes after classes had been dismissed for the day.

At 3:15 p.m., an unexplained blast rocked the gymnasium of the school, ripping the doors from the gym and spewing dense clouds of smoke through the halls and classrooms. Classes ended at 3:12.

Three minutes earlier, the gymnasium had been in use by students of a physical education class.

FILED OUT QUIETLY

School board officials, teachers and firemen all said there was no panic among the students still lingering in the corridors at the time of the blast, and all filed quietly out of the building as they had been trained.

"But thank God," said one teacher, "this didn't happen three minutes earlier—many would have died."

At the height of the fire, more than 100 men fought the blaze. The Lake Cowichan 15-man de-

Two Years' Work Burns Up

VANCOUVER (CP) — A fire in the chemistry building at the University of B.C. has left in doubt the future of Hans Koch, 25, of Destruction Bay, N.W.T.

The fire destroyed scientific notes and apparatus belonging to Koch, who has been working almost two years on his thesis for a master's degree in science.

UBC officials said they are considering the situation. Damage was estimated at $14,000.

Blast, Fire Rip New Block

RED DEER (CP)—Four men were in hospital with injuries suffered Tuesday when an explosion and fire shook a six-storey apartment block under construction. Three other workmen were treated and released from hospital.

In hospital were Simon Denham, 29, of Calgary; William Welikikid, 28, of Red Deer; Joseph Welygan, 32, of Lacombe; and Henry Vrolyk, 38, of Red Deer.

School Fire

There was at least one hero in yesterday's Lake Cowichan School fire, but no one knows for sure who he was.

Immediately after the blast from the gymnasium area, a student was spotted holding shut two large doors separating the corridors from the burning area, and apparently successfully containing the intense heat and smoke.

He shouted to teachers to "get the kids out of the building—quick," and held on to the doors until nearly overcome by smoke.

Then he left quietly.

Space Switchboard Soars Into Orbit

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Relay II, a space switchboard with long life expectancy, soared into orbit Tuesday night in a major step toward a U.S. goal of establishing a world-wide space communications network within three years.

Before the satellite had completed one global pass, it demonstrated its capability. It received radio communications signals and a television test pattern from a ground station at Mojave, Calif., and beamed them back to earth—to both the Mojave station and one at Nutley, N.J.

FIRST TRANSMISSION

First television transmission between continents is scheduled today when high U.S. and Japanese officials are scheduled to exchange greetings via the satellite. President Johnson may be among the U.S. officials.

Stations in seven countries on four continents planned to conduct television, radio, telephone and teletype experiments with the satellite, which carries new electronic components designed to operate several years despite radiation and other space hazards.

Relay II is the first of two big U.S. space efforts on tap this week. Echo II, a 135-foot diameter balloon folded in the nose of a Thor-Agena B booster, is scheduled to be shot into earth orbit Friday.

The United States and the Soviet Union have agreed to try to bounce radio signals off Echo in their first joint experiments in talking via satellite.

A three-stage Delta rocket propelled the 184-pound Relay II upward from Cape Kennedy.

Panama Boats Halted

PANAMA CITY (UPI) — The newspaper La Hora reported from Colon Tuesday the U.S. navy stopped two Panamanian boats off the Colon breakwater, ordered them into the Canal Zone port of Cristobal and held them for a two-hour search.

It said crewmen were drafting a protest to Panamanian President Roberto Chirri.

U.S. military spokesmen in the Canal Zone gave a different version. They said the vessels were stopped by zone maritime inspectors but it was "just a routine thing."

Don't Be Killed by Curiosity

Dionnes Warn U.S. Quints

NEW YORK (UPI) — The four living Dionne quintuplets Tuesday warned the infant Fisher quint not to let their parents turn them into a "tourist attraction."

"Public curiosity is a tidal wave that sooner or later may threaten to swamp you," Annette, Yvonne, Marie and Cecilia said in an open letter published in the current issue of McCall's magazine.

"The decisions your parents make in these first months may well be the most important of your lives. It is so difficult, but so necessary, to think in terms of a lifetime, not only of the immediate urgent future . . .

"The difficulty is that nobody really knows how to raise (quints) as human beings, not as money-making curiosities. Quintland is a magnet that lures lawyers and promoters and men waving cheque books . . . the dividing line is terribly slim between meeting real need and cashing in on an opportunity."

The Dionnes said they hoped to meet the Fisher quint in their home of Aberdeen, S.D. "One day, when the fuss dies down."

The Dionnes, now 28 years old, said they hope the Fisher quint will "grow up as independent beings, four girls and a boy joined by great affection, but each able to stand sturdily alone."

"This is a very special wish for you," the Dionnes said, "because if anyone made such a wish for us it has not yet come completely true, not after all the years that have gone by."

China Seeks Global Front

PEKING (Reuters)—Communist China has launched a plea for a united world front against the United States in what some East European observers here felt was a move aimed at Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Appearing Tuesday as an editorial in the main Chinese Communist newspaper People's Daily, the plea echoed a call by party chief Mao Tse-tung calling for the broadest possible unity to counter American "global strategy to conquer the world."

The editorial called for the exploitation of what it interpreted as growing differences between the U.S. and its allies, directly citing Britain, France, West Germany and Japan.

It put forward the theory that there was "an intermediate zone" between the U.S. and Communist countries and that U.S. efforts to seize control of this zone were bound to cause opposition among the people and countries in it.

One part of the zone consisted of "independent countries and those struggling for independence in Asia, Africa and Latin America."

The second part consisted of "the whole of Western Europe, Australasia, Canada and other capitalist countries."

The editorial said all the forces in the world, including the American people but excluding "United States imperialism and its lackeys," could and should form such a front.

At the same time it openly criticized Soviet leaders, saying their "hopes for United States-Soviet co-operation are but idle dreams."

It said that by undermining the unity of the socialist camp, Soviet leaders violated the interests of Russia and of all other socialist countries and catered to the needs of U.S. imperialism.

Some observers said this apparently meant China was prepared to accept the Russian leaders and their followers in the front only if they changed their present policy toward the U.S.

Paris Spurns Warning

PARIS (UPI)—France Tuesday tersely rejected a United States warning against recognizing Communist China.

The rejection came in a "cort note" replying to a Washington note saying it did not consider French recognition of the Peking regime to be of service to the free world, French diplomats said.

President de Gaulle also is reported to have met opposition from West Germany.

Campbell River Ferry Slip

Mother Describes Death of Children

CAMPBELL RIVER — A sobbing woman told a coroner's jury here yesterday how she battled her way out of a floating car, reached back in to assist her husband out—and then watched the car and her three children sink into the icy sea.

Joy Fowler was giving evidence into the deaths of her children Kenneth, 9, Debbie, 7, and Gordon, 4. They drowned Friday night at the Campbell River ferry slip after their father Ron drove off the dock, thinking the ferry Quadra Queen was still moored.

A barricade, usually lowered when the ferry pulls out, was not in place at the time of the accident.

HIGH WINDS

Ferry service employees testified at the inquest that, because of high winds, the barrier would not stay in place and had to be lifted.

The coroner's jury, in attaching no blame to anyone for the tragedy, recommended a second barrier be installed at the Campbell River and Quadra Island ferry slips.

LOCKING DEVICE

The jury urged the barrier be equipped with flashing amber lights and secured with a locking device before each sailing.

Mrs. Fowler broke down while testifying that she managed to open a window on the passenger side of the front seat and battled her way from the upside-down car.

REACHED BACK

She said she reached back into the vehicle and pulled her husband out, thinking at first it was one of the children.

The vehicle then sank in 25 feet of water and the parents were pulled from the water by ferry workers.

It was dark and gale-force winds were blowing at the time.

Jailed for Year

Forgery Counts Spoil Veteran's Record

PORT ALBERNI—A record of community and wartime service was cited when William Harrison Widdess, 44, came before Magistrate W. E. MacLeod for sentence on 22 forgery charges.

Widdess, a veteran of Pacific and Atlantic service with the RCN, was given one-year jail sentence for the offences which had been committed from January to August last year, while the accused had been employed in the Indian affairs branch office here.

Speaking to sentence, Widdess' lawyer, William Beckingham, stated the accused had never been in trouble before. He told of his service here in the Royal Canadian Legion and in Boy Scout work. He asked for a suspended sentence.

Victoria Benefactor

Dignity in Death Sought For England's Harold

Victoria resident Colin Rutherford, 86, of 1227 Beach Drive, is a benefactor of an 11th-century abbey at Waltham, England, it was disclosed yesterday.

With a recent cheque for £2,000—about $6,000—Mr. Rutherford brought his total donations to the abbey to date to $30,000. His connection with the town of Waltham, where King Harold built the abbey, is that he was born there.

A few years ago on a visit to England, Mr. Rutherford saw an ad in a London magazine asking for donations for the restoration of the abbey. When he returned to Canada he decided to become a benefactor.

Mr. Rutherford originally came to Victoria in 1929 on his retirement as a china merchant. He is married with a married son living in Victoria, and has a sister in England.

The abbey, which is in the centre of Waltham Cross, was started by King Harold in 1060 and completed at the time of his death at the Battle of Hastings in 1066.

"The main reason for my father's decision to donate," said Colin Rutherford, Jr., of 2570 Nottingham Road, "was that King Harold's grave was a rather meagre affair and he wanted it to have more dignity."

Mr. Rutherford, Jr., said that it was hoped to hold a dedication ceremony at Waltham on completion of the abbey's restoration later this year.

"Although my father would like to attend, I doubt if he will be able," he said.

Woolco Store Coming

By JACK FREY

The mystery of what firm will become Greater Victoria's fourth major department store was solved last night when it was learned that a subsidiary of F. W. Woolworth Co. Ltd. will go into Town-and-Country shopping centre.

A. B. Munro, Woolworth's district manager for Canada, told the Colonist last night from Toronto that a Woolco department store is planned for Town-and-Country.

Woolco, a Canadian sub-diary of Woolworth's, has department stores in Brantford, Windsor, Sudbury and Hamilton, and is building new stores in Sydney, N.S., and Calgary.

It appeared from plans shown to Saanich council Monday that part of the proposed Woolco department store will occupy a portion of the shopping centre where the Woolworth store is now located.

SIMILAR STORES

It is understood that the Canadian Woolco stores were opened after similar stores in the United States proved successful in combating discount operations.

A discount operation is one in which goods are sold in a warehouse atmosphere devoid of normal department store trimmings, explained a city store executive.

The mystery about which firm will occupy the Town-and-Country premises arose Monday when Robert G. Bental of Dominion Construction Company Limited obtained approval in principle from Saanich council for construction of a department store there.

Septic Tanks Not Draining

Houses east of Mt. Douglas Park have so much water in the ground that septic tanks are not draining, says a housewife who is circulating a petition for installation of a sewer.

Mrs. Arthur Thornhill said she and her husband bought a house six months ago at 1571 McIlhorm Avenue, but that when he started to dig up the ground to plant grass, all he got was water.

The ground is so saturated that plumbing facilities do not function properly and "you have to be careful how much water you use," said the upset housewife.

Things got worse when the winter rains started. The basement is always cold and damp, drainage ditches seem to be frequently plugged and sewage water is right under the surface of the ground, said Mrs. Thornhill.

The Thornhills are circulating a petition among their neighbors, asking for installation of a sewer and for weekly garbage collection. Their telephone number is 477-4753 and they were looking for more names last night.

I Should Be Dead Man Says Ucluelet Troller

UCLUELET (CP) — Fisherman Axel Tomren, 31 says he should be a dead man.

He told Monday how a giant wave turned over his 37-foot troller, Karen A, and threw him out of the wheelhouse when caught in the violent storm which swept the coast Sunday night.

SAVED HIS LIFE

Tomren, a blond Scandinavian who has fished the coast all his life, said only the fact another boat, the Wonder II skippered by Glen Edwards, was accompanying him, saved his life in the storm in Barclay Sound as winds hit an estimated 75 miles an hour.

LIKE ROCK

"All of a sudden a wave lifted the boat out of the water and a squall turned me turtle," Tomren related.

"The boat sank like a rock so I couldn't hang on to it," Tomren started to swim in the huge seas. He saw Edwards turn the Wonder II around and come toward him.

"He moved right up beside me. It seemed a long time. His deck listed over and a wave half lifted me and I half swam aboard. It was like it had been rehearsed. Then he grabbed hold of me, and we got below."

"By all rights I should be out there somewhere," said the fisherman, pointing to the wild sea.

Bail $12,000 in Rape Case

Bail was set at $12,000 in Saanich magistrate's court Tuesday for an unemployed shipyard worker charged with raping two 18-year-old University of Victoria students Jan. 8 and Jan. 20.

Larry Kenneth Kanester, 2543 Wark, was charged after the two girls identified him in a police lineup. Saanich prosecutor Kenneth Murphy asked for "very substantial bail for the man due to the gravity and number of the offences."

Kanester was remanded to Jan. 28 to fix a day for preliminary hearing. Victoria lawyer Alan Bigelow will act as defence counsel.

The "completely unprompted" theft of $33 from the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Douglas and Bay, Jan. 7, has netted a man a three-month jail term.

Donald Campbell, 335 Gorge Road, was sentenced in city court after he told Magistrate William Ostler he had acted on impulse, later gave himself up and made restitution.

Magistrate Ostler indicated the man would probably not spend the term in jail, but would receive psychiatric treatment.

A man found in a store at 3 a.m. Jan. 17 told police he "wanted to get some money to pay his lawyer."

Sentence Today On Drug Count

John Morwood Caird was convicted of illegal possession of narcotics by an assize court jury yesterday after deliberations lasting only 21 minutes and he will be sentenced at 11 a.m. today.

Caird was alleged to have obtained prescriptions from several Victoria doctors without telling them he was being treated by more than one doctor.

SUSPICIOUS DOCTOR

Caird was arrested after a doctor became suspicious about the amount of drugs Caird required and telephoned the RCMP.

George Gregory acted as crown prosecutor in the trial before Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson. Caird acted as his own defence counsel.

PREVIOUS CONVICTIONS

Under cross examination Caird admitted to previous convictions for possession in 1940, 1958 and 1962. He also admitted he had gone to a number of doctors for narcotics.

Mr. Justice Wilson, in a charge to the jury which lasted only 12 minutes, said the accused's own admissions left them little alternative but to convict.

Caird gave evidence on his own behalf but called no other witnesses.

Bookmarks Macabre

Book borrowers from Victoria's public library will get a macabre reminder of the dangers of smoking if they use new bookmarks delivered yesterday.

They show a cigarette with the smoke forming into the word "Cancer." They will be distributed throughout B.C. by the Canadian Cancer Society and will also be available at public health departments and school boards.

Saanich court yesterday to Jan. 23 for a probation report.

Gary M. Kelly, 3179 Alder, was fined $250 and had his driver's licence suspended when he pleaded guilty in city court to dangerous driving.

Court was told Kelly's car was seen weaving on Cook Dec. 22 with its headlights out. Several cars had to veer sharply to miss the car. The ride ended when Kelly's car smashed into a power pole.

"Automobiles are becoming more lethal than guns in this country," said Magistrate William Ostler. "This is disgraceful. You might have killed people."

Kelly said he could not remember anything.

A man identified as Robert Warden, found drinking beer in the Dominion Hotel parking lot, was fined $50 in city court when he pleaded guilty to drinking in a public place. He pleaded guilty to the charge.

Robert E. March, 24, was fined $50 in city court when he pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance. Court was told he was fighting with another man early Dec. 15 in the 600 block Gorge Road.

Vivian Passmore, 921 Pandora, was sentenced in city court to three months imprisonment on a charge of breaking and entering and theft.

She was charged after she stole three bottles of liquor from the apartment of her former boy friend Jan. 14.

Courthouse Free Soon

Old courthouse in Bastion Square is expected to be free for B.C. Maritime Museum to move in this year, says Commodore Angus Boulton, chairman of museum directors. He spoke while asking Oak Bay council for grant increase to $1,000 from $250. Similar bids are going to other councils as new home will see budget increase to $40,000 from $24,000 and revenue will be only $25,000. Courthouse site is expected to attract 50,000 visitors a year compared to 22,000 now.

All-Number Telephones Here Within Two Years

Telephones in Greater Victoria will be converted to the all-number calling system within two years but it is not known yet when customers will be able to dial long distance without the help of a long-distance telephone operator.

The B.C. Telephone Company's 1966 directories will have seven-digit numbers instead of the two-letter and five-digit listings, and the only reminder of the old system will be the no-longer-used alphabet on the customers' telephone dials.

MAY, 1962

"The conversion to all figure telephone numbers is proceeding according to the schedule set by B.C. Telephone in May, 1962," a spokesman said yesterday.

All-number calling (ANC) will have been introduced to all but eight of the company's 154 exchanges by the end of 1964. Still to be fully converted are Victoria, Nanaimo, North Vancouver, West Vancouver, New Westminster, Vancouver, Richmond and Terrace, he said.

"To date, Victoria has 41 per cent converted, Vancouver has 43 per cent converted and Nanaimo has 40 per cent converted."

NO INDICATION

B.C. Telephone hopes to bring direct distance dialing to Victoria, but there was no indication when this will come about.

Three exchanges on Vancouver Island—Duncan, Nanaimo and Courtenay—already have direct distance dialing service, in which up to 13 digits are dialed by the customer who wants to reach someone in eastern Canada or the United States.

Around the Island

Claims Dogs Ill-Treated on Train

DUNCAN—Four weeks ago it was touch and go for Lady, three-year-old cougar hound. The night she arrived at her new home, Harry Bradshaw's 60-acre farm on Someros Road near Duncan, she gave birth to eight puppies.

With her from a kennel in Arkansas, but in a different box, was her male cougar bound companion, Buck. Mr. Bradshaw said both hounds had been on the train for five days, and their condition when they arrived was "disgraceful."

Throughout the trip the two dogs were only fed one can of dog food each. "It was promptly put on the freight bill, which was $98," said Mr. Bradshaw. He said it was "disgraceful" that the female, so far advanced, had been shipped here.

Mr. Bradshaw is somewhat disappointed with the quality of the dogs. "I guess I am prejudiced because I always had good dogs," he said, but he will try Lady and Buck when next he goes cougar hunting.

ALBERNI—Tom Gus, 41-year-old boomman, was elected chief of the Sheshaht Band Monday. He will serve his second term in office.

With A. G. Berbeck of the Indian affairs office acting as returning officer, exactly 50 per cent of the eligible 112 voters turned out to the polls in the Someros Hall.

In the final count, Chief Gus received 40 votes, with his opponent Allan Dick receiving 15. Elected to council were Mamie Wilson, with 43 votes; Charlie Sam, Jr. 41; Romona Gus 32.

Other candidates were Wesley Gus with 29 votes and Clifford Watts with 11.

Hospital Plans Moving Ahead

DUNCAN — Officials at Cowichan District Hospital report "good progress" by architects in preparing plans for the new $3,500,000 hospital. Structural consultants from Vancouver are now assisting with the plans, and plumbing and heating contractors will be called in soon.

Spending Approved For School Jobs

DUNCAN — Trustees of the Cowichan school board at their last meeting learned the department of education has approved of two major expenditures here: The Someros School one-classroom addition at $17,400, the lowest bid from Burak Construction, and a ground seal project at the Cowichan Senior Secondary School, estimated at $12,400.

Tenders were called for another addition at the Cowichan Station Elementary School, after the department approved this project as well, but trustees are yet undecided as to where the classroom should be built.

So far, the school district has not yet been advised by the department of highways regarding dangerous school crossings.

Several weeks ago trustees and highway officials investigated the problem on location, and another letter will be sent to the department urging recommendations.

Duncan will be the centre of a public relations conference Feb. 22, to be held at Quamichan Junior Secondary School and sponsored by the British Columbia Teachers' Federation.

The conference is open to association officers, principals, counsellors, trustees, school board secretary-treasurers, district superintendents and PTA association members from Vancouver Island.

A similar event is being organized for the Kamloops area.

Trustee Pat Mason strongly criticized an article which appeared in the Sunday edition of The Daily Colonist.

He said so far no one had approached him to have the present trustee election at large system replaced by the representative system as was suggested in the article.

He termed the representative system "ridiculous" and felt the disapproval of taxpayers in the unorganized area of the present system as suggested in the article does not exist.

Mr. Mason is one of the four trustees from the unorganized area.

George Bonner of Cobble Hill, former trustee and board chairman of the Cowichan school district, claimed in the story numbers of taxpayers in the unorganized area, dissatisfied with the present election at large system, are growing.

School for Jobless Planned in Port Alberni

PORT ALBERNI — An upgrading school to prepare unemployed for apprenticeship training and vocational courses will open here Feb. 3, according to a report from James S. Speedie at the regular meeting of Alberni Valley Winter Employment Committee.

The idea of the day school for unemployed was brought forward at a meeting of the group last year by H. E. Murray, a representative of the Kiwanis club. The board of District 70 School District undertook to sponsor the project, and recently received approval of the department of education.

NEW TEACHER

Mr. Speedie told the committee a qualified teacher has been engaged and the candidates for the first class are being interviewed.

The first term will continue for five months, ending June 27, with students taking mathematics, English and science courses to qualify for Grade 10 equivalency certificates.

They will attend classes from 9 a.m. until 12 noon, and from 1 to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday each week.

Mr. Speedie pointed out that this is the first smaller community in B.C. to have a day school of the type.

During the first term, enrollment will be limited to 25 unemployed men who are in need of the upgrading to enter vocational training. The applicants have been referred by the National Employment Service.

Jindra Kulich, director of adult education in this district, has been working with the committee in getting the project started.

Chairman of the winter employment committee, Fred King, expressed appreciation of the work that had gone into bringing the plan to fruition.

"It is a credit to you and all the others on the committee," he told Mr. Speedie.

NANAIMO — Local Council of Women will recommend uniform school curricula when they submit resolutions to the provincial meeting next month.

Drinking drivers are also a target as the women press for breathalyzer tests for all thought to be impaired.

Columbia Wins Initials

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Legislative Reporter

Heads of state of Canada and the U.S. sit down in Washington at 9 a.m. today to initial an agreement which well-informed sources say will pour $319,400,000 in U.S. funds into B.C.'s treasury.

This is the sum which the U.S. must pay to persuade B.C. to go ahead with the controversial and long-sought Columbia River project.

BIGGEST PROBLEM

To British Columbia the money could be worth more than $500,000 over the construction life of the project, but persuading political adversaries that this is the case may be Premier Bennett's biggest problem this year and for several years to come.

The final price was agreed to after three years of bitter political infighting, stormy debates and intense negotiation.

TOP SECRET

In Victoria, Washington and Ottawa circles it is still a top secret which is only to be released jointly after 9 this morning.

But alleged details of the final Canadian-U.S. agreement have been seeping out of Ottawa and Washington for weeks.

According to reliable sources, B.C. is to get $255,000,000 in U.S. funds for its downstream power and $64,400,000 U.S. for flood control.

FLOOD CONTROL

The power price would be paid after Ottawa has finally ratified the three-year-old Columbia Treaty. Flood control payments would be phased with construction of the dams.

The two factors which make the price so much more valuable to B.C. than it is costly to the U.S. are the Canadian dollar discount and the interest which the money can earn over the construction life of the project.

TOTAL PRICE

On the basis of today's value of the U.S. dollar the total price to be paid B.C. is worth $345,000,000 in Canadian funds. This is less than the estimated cost of the treaty dams if they had to be paid for tomorrow, but they don't.

The advance payment for power would be invested at the best interest rates available and drawn upon as needed for progress construction payments. Phased flood control payments would likewise be invested as they were received.

Not until the project is completed in the 1970s will it be possible to determine exactly what the U.S. price means to B.C. because it is impossible to predict what interest rates

Mountie Saddle For LBJ

President Johnson now has an RCMP saddle to add to his collection at LBJ Ranch. This was Prime Minister Pearson's gift when the two leaders met in Washington yesterday.

Johnson presented Pearson with a large map case, an electronic clock and a leather-bound volume of treasures of the National Gallery of Art. In addition to other gifts, the two leaders exchanged photographs.

Pearson, Johnson Parley

WASHINGTON (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson met for 2½ hours Tuesday night for talks which a spokesman said focused mainly on Canadian-American affairs, and especially economic relations.

A member of the Canadian group here said later that "a most excellent understanding" was established between Johnson and Pearson during friendly, informal discussions.

SESSIONS TODAY

Detailed discussions were reserved for sessions today at the White House.

Pearson, shortly after his arrival by helicopter, stood next to the president and said in part: "Our friendship is deep and our understanding is great. But we have many problems, of course, because our contacts are so close and so important to each other."

BASIC NATURE

"We will solve these problems, I know, because of the depth of our friendship and the basic nature of our understanding."

Johnson, standing nearly a head taller than the prime minister and Mrs. Pearson, said he looked forward to "fruitful and worthwhile discussions."

Today Pearson will place a wreath at the grave of the late president Kennedy.

—(ROSS A. SCOTT)

$1,000,000 Fire Rages Away

Fire preceded by unexplained blast rages on way to $1,000,000 damage total yesterday at Cowichan High School. One wing of building was total loss, but no students were injured. Fire lasted several hours.

Dionnes Warn U.S. Quints

NEW YORK (UPI) — The four living Dionne quintuplets Tuesday warned the infant Fisher quint not to let their parents turn them into a "tourist attraction."

"Public curiosity is a tidal wave that sooner or later may threaten to swamp you," Annette, Yvonne, Marie and Cecile said in an open letter published in the current issue of McCall's magazine.

"The decisions your parents make in these first months may well be the most important of your lives. It is so difficult, but so necessary, to think in terms of a lifetime, not only of the immediate urgent future . . .

"The difficulty is that nobody really knows how to raise (quints) as human beings, not as money-making curiosities. Quintland is a magnet that lures lawyers and promoters and men waving cheque books . . . the dividing line is terribly slim between meeting real need and cashing in on an opportunity."

In their autobiography, the Dionnes indicted their parents as the primary cause of a painfully unhappy childhood.

The Dionnes said they hoped to meet the Fisher quint in their home of Aberdeen, S.D. "One day, when the fuss dies down."

The Dionnes, now 29 years old, said they hope the Fisher quint will "grow up as independent beings, four girls and a boy joined by great affection, but each able to stand sturdily alone."

"This is a very special wish for you," the Dionnes said, "because if anyone made such a wish for us it has not yet come completely true, not after all the years that have gone by."

China Seeks Global Front

PEKING (Reuters)—Communist China has launched a plea for a united world front against the United States in what some East European observers here felt was a move aimed at Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Appearing Tuesday as an editorial in the main Chinese Communist newspaper People's Daily, the plea echoed a call by party chief Mao Tse-tung calling for the broadest possible unity to counter American "global strategy to conquer the world."

The editorial called for the exploitation of what it interpreted as growing differences between the U.S. and its allies, directly citing Britain, France, West Germany and Japan.

It put forward the theory that there was "an intermediate zone" between the U.S. and Communist countries and that U.S. efforts to seize control of this zone were bound to cause opposition among the people and countries in it.

One part of the zone consisted of "independent countries and those struggling for independence in Asia, Africa and Latin America."

The second part consisted of "the whole of Western Europe, Australia, Canada and other capitalist countries."

At the same time it openly criticized Soviet leaders, saying their "hopes for United States-Soviet co-operation are but idle dreams."

Some observers said this apparently meant China was prepared to accept the Russian leaders and their followers in the front only if they changed their present policy toward the U.S.

Paris Spurns Warning

PARIS (UPI)—France Tuesday twice rejected a United States warning against recognizing Communist China.

The rejection came in a "cart note" replying to a Washington note saying it did not consider French recognition of the Peking regime to be of service to the free world, French diplomats said.

President de Gaulle also is reported to have met opposition from West Germany.

LAKE COWICHAN—Dozens of children missed injury—possibly death—here yesterday when a $1,000,000 fire roared through the senior high school exactly three minutes after classes had been dismissed for the day.

At 3:15 p.m., an unexplained blast rocked the gymnasium of the school, ripping the doors from the gym and spewing dense clouds of smoke through the halls and classrooms. Classes ended at 3:12.

Three minutes earlier, the gymnasium had been in use by students of a physical education class.

The blaze destroyed 14 of 20 classrooms in the three-building junior-senior high school complex, which houses 500 students.

No injuries were reported but many students lost personal property in the fast-spreading flames. Several students fled the scene still dressed in their gym clothes, leaving behind their street clothing.

FILED OUT QUIETLY

School board officials, teachers and firemen all said there was no panic among the students still lingering in the corridors at the time of the blast, and all filed quietly out of the building as they had been trained.

"But thank God," said one teacher, "this didn't happen three minutes earlier—many would have died."

At the height of the fire, more than 100 men fought the blaze. The Lake Cowichan 15-man de-

Fire Kills Four Children

WINNIPEG (CP) — Four children died and four other persons were injured in an early morning fire today in North End Winnipeg.

Dead in the fire are Wendy, 6, Shelley, 5, Corrine, 2, and Sheldon, 1, three daughters and one son of Mrs. Roberta Davis.

Mrs. Davis, her sister, Jessie Sharon, 46, and Mrs. Davis' two older daughters, Faith, 9, and Bonnie, 8, were taken to hospital suffering burns, scrapes and from smoke inhalation.

The father, Floyd Davis, already was in hospital, preparing to undergo surgery. Bonnie noticed the smoke, woke her mother and the pair escaped through a window and over a second-storey porch.

Cave-In Kills Winniepege Youth

WINNIPEG (CP) — One man is dead and two are injured following a cave-in shortly after noon Tuesday at a construction site in suburban Assiniboia. Identity of the dead man is being withheld but it is known he is a 19-year-old from Winnipeg.

There was at least one hero in yesterday's Lake Cowichan School fire, but no one knows for sure who he was.

Immediately after the blast from the gymnasium area, a student was spotted holding shut two large doors separating the corridors from the burning area, and apparently successfully containing the intense heat and smoke.

He shouted to teachers to "get the kids out of the building—quick," and held on to the doors until nearly overcome by smoke.

Then he left quietly.

Space Switchboard Soars Into Orbit

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Relay II, a space switchboard with long life expectancy, soared into orbit Tuesday night in a major step toward a U.S. goal of establishing a world-wide space communications network within three years.

Before the satellite had completed one global pass, it demonstrated its capability. It received radio communications signals and a television test pattern from a ground station at Mojave, Calif., and beamed them back to earth—to both the Mojave station and one at Nutley, N.J.

A three-stage Delta rocket propelled the 184-pound Relay II upward from Cape Kennedy.

the nose of a Thor-Agena B booster, is scheduled to be shot into earth orbit Friday.

The United States and the Soviet Union have agreed to try to bounce radio signals off Echo in their first joint experiments in talking via satellite.

Police Find Woman Hurt

Shooting Heard In East Berlin

BERLIN (Reuters) — Volleys of shots were heard from inside East Berlin at the border wall with the French sector Tuesday. West Berlin police said shortly afterwards, East German border guards searched the area near the wall.

Cowichan Classes Suspended

All classes at Cowichan Lake High School have been suspended for the rest of the week while officials decide how to accommodate students.

Temporary classrooms may be found later in church basements and private halls, and the department of education has offered portable classrooms if required.

Sinatra Habit?

GLASGOW (UPI)—Frank Sinatra, Jr., missed a prank kidnapping attempt Tuesday night when police hustled him through a side door into the theatre where he was making a personal appearance.

Students at Glasgow University had said they planned to abduct the recently abducted singer and ask ransom for charities.
